WARNS NEUTRALS ON 'ASYLUM'

Nazi Sub Shoots Down U. S. Navy Blimp

ALL BUT ONE OF CREW OF K-74 SAVED

Non-Rigid Ship Forced To Land on Sea After U-Boat Shell Scores Hit.

FIRST TO BE LOST

Unique Battle Staged Between Air and Undersea Craft In Atlantic.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The navy announced today that a Nazi U-boat shot down an American blimp during a unique battle recently between the undersea craft and the non-rigid airship in the Atlantic.

It was the first of the navy's blimps to be shot down by gunfire from an enemy submarine.

Only one of the blimp's estimated crew of eleven was lost after the blimp settled on the sea.

The casualty was Aviation Machinist's Mate Isadore Stessel, whose next of kin is Samuel Stessel, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The non-rigid airship which was shot down was known as the K-74 and was one of the navy's 250-foot blimps which have been used extensively in convoy work.

"The K-74 was fired on while attacking the submarine, and, as the result of a hit, was forced to make a landing on the sea," the navy said.

It was not revealed whether other airships or planes came to the rescue of the stricken airship. Navy spokesmen said they had no information on whether the U-boat was damaged or sunk either during the battle or later.

Two hundred blimps have been authorized by congress and it was understood that a large part of this total already have been built and are in service. The K-74 was the first one lost.

Recently the navy said that no convoy protected by blimps in either the Pacific or Atlantic has ever lost a ship.

The blimps have a range of approximately 2,000 miles and have been used off all American coasts as well as over waters outside continental United States.

The type of blimp lost in the recent action is the largest non-rigid airship built. The blimps are armed with machine guns

Charge FDR In Bid for Service Vote

GOP Leaders Claim That President Opened 4th Term Drive In Talk.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt laughingly brushed aside today a request for comment on the "speculation as to the political portent" of his Wednesday night broadcast.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The service vote in 1944 appeared today as the key to a growing controversy over whether President Roosevelt spoke Wednesday night as a wartime commander-in-chief or a campaigning candidate or both.

And out of the scrap sprang the issue of whether the office of war information and military and naval facilities should be used to carry criticisms of the president to the fighting men.

Chairman Harrison E Spangler of the Republican national committee said the president's address started his "campaign for a fourth and perhaps continuing term." He charged that, in his world-wide broadcast, Mr. Roosevelt made "a bold bid for the vote of our soldiers and sailors who are risking their lives for freedom."

There was no immediate reply to Spangler's formal request for OWI and service news channels to transmit comments on the "political implications" of the speech to the armed forces.

Congressional critics said the president sounded like a fourth term candidate, but his friends contended it was purely an unpolitical progress report on the war.

Chief objections seemed to hinge on Mr Roosevelt's outline of planned government benefits for fighting men after the war—which such men as Senators Smith (D.-S C.) and Taft (R.-Ohio) said seemed to be a bid for the service vote.

Senator Guffey (D.-Pa.), staunch administration supporter, said however, the president's soldier benefit suggestions hit the nail on the head and predicted congress would pass them promptly.

That point of who actually would do the most for the fighting men underscored the squabble. Taft said "congress has always been more generous to war veterans than the president. Congress already has provided for hospitalization and compensation and has greatly expanded the provisions for vocational rehabilitation for returning servicemen."

3 SHOW UP FOR COUNCIL STUDY OF PORT PLANS

Mayor, Six Other Councilmen Absent After Bid To Session on Major Airport.

NEW MEETING SET

Committee, Informed $120,000 Available To Buy Land, To Meet Again Monday.

Two of the three members of city council's finance committee—the only councilmen who showed up at last night's caucus on the airport financing plan—heard from City Auditor Paul L. Kelley that the city can raise an estimated $120,000 toward the purchase of land and start preliminary work on the airport expansion project.

Although other council members and city officials had been invited to attend the important session, Councilman Russell Porch and C. N. Shultz and Auditor Kelley were the only ones who showed up.

Because of the apparent lack of interest among other councilmen, Porch said the council committee has scheduled another caucus for next Monday night.

Porch, chairman of the committee, said he would ask the mayor, service-safety director, city solicitor, and city engineer to meet with the finance committee then in an attempt to map legislation on the airport land purchase for action by council at its regular meeting Tuesday night.

Porch said he had told the six other council members of the committee meeting last night and invited them to sit in on it. Michael Mihalick, the third member of the finance committee, said he had another important meeting last night and was unable to be there.

Unable to reach Mayor W. J. Locke at his office during the afternoon, Porch said he had left word at the mayor's home last night of the meeting. The mayor said today he attended another meeting last night and did not hear of the council session until he arrived home late in the evening.

(Porch announced last Monday that he planned to call last night's meeting of council. At the same time Mayor Locke announced he had written a letter to Porch urging the finance committee to begin immediate study of the airport situation.)

While this apparent lack of interest in the airport being displayed by councilmen and other city officials, the Pennsylvania

FDR Tells Them Not to Harbor Axis Leaders

Italian Troops, In Open Revolt at Milan, Refuse to Open Fire.

BULLETIN

MADRID—(AP)— New fighting between German and Italian troops in Northern Italy and establishment by the Germans of a guard over five Italian submarines they found at Fiume were reported in messages to Madrid today.

(By Associated Press)

BERN—Italian troops have revolted at Milan, refusing to obey orders to fire upon demonstrating compatriots who swept the streets by the thousands shouting demands for peace, a Chiasso dispatch said today.

Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio ousted the Milan military commander, General Canale, and ordered Gen. Vittorio Ruggero, chief of an Alpinist division, to take over in the industrial area, it was reported.

These and other sharp measures were taken by Badoglio, seeking to quell domestic unrest and prevent dissemination of the peace offer broadcast to Italy by Gen. Dwight D Eisenhower yesterday. But talk of an armistice persisted.

A definite stiffening of governmental discipline was described in reports reaching Bern. While peace and liberty of political thought continued to be the main objectives of demonstrations throughout Italy, Badoglio's army-enforced decrees sharply limiting freedom of expression by newspapers aroused bitterness among liberal and leftist political leaders.

Many described the new censorship measures as smacking of those which Benito Mussolini and his ousted Fascist regime had imposed during the past 20 years.

Badoglio, however, did not succeed in keeping the Eisenhower speech from the public. While countless thousands listened to it on the radio, mimeographed copies appeared on the streets of the principal cities a few hours after

U. S. Will Deal With Any Non-Fascist On Peace Terms, Says President.

BULLETIN

LONDON —(AP)— The British government associated itself fully today with President Roosevelt's expression of hope that neutral nations would not offer asylum to Axis leaders.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt issued a virtual ultimatum today not to neutral nations to offer asylum to Axis leaders.

He also told a press-radio conference he does not care with whom the government deals in Italy as long as it is not a definite member of the Fascist party. He expressed a willingness to treat for peace, when the time comes, with a king, prime minister or even a mayor of a city.

In a formal statement, the chief executive took cognizance of rumors that "Mussolini and members of his Fascist gang may attempt to take refuge in neutral territory." One day, he added, Hitler and his gang and Tojo and his gang will be trying to escape from their countries.

"I find it difficult," he said, to believe any neutral would give asylum to or extend protection to any of them. I can only say that the government of the United States would regard the action by a neutral government in affording asylum to Axis leaders as inconsistent with the principles for which the United Nations are fighting and that the United States government hopes that no neutral government will permit its territory to be used as a place of refuge or otherwise assist such persons in any effort to escape their just deserts."

Producers' Chairman Cites Operating Cost as Reason For Problem.

A milk shortage threatening cities all over Ohio seems imminent in Richland county, Clarence Mowry, chairman of the Richland County Milk Producers association, said today.

Mowry said milk production had gone down because many farmers have been selling their cows since they are unable to get help. The price of feed and the price of cows are factors preventing an increase in milk production, he said.

Meanwhile today milk dealers and producers from Ohio and nearby states prepared to recommend to the Office of Price Administration that price increases be allowed milk pro-

In Mansfield today to begin his conferences with Richland countians on current problems within the scope of congress, J. L. R. Cove, district OPA conservation officer, said the "No riders—no gas" rule applied unless an office of civilian defense agency certified that a ride-sharing arrangement was not possible.

C. C. Beelman, chairman of the local ration board, this morning said that the board had not received details of the ruling, but he said he was expecting a notice later in the day.

WHIRLWIND: U. S., Canadian Troops Sweep Into Nazi Line

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA — American and Canadian troops have driven deeper into the central and right flanks of the Germans' wavering Mt. Etna line, Allied headquarters announced today, as the Nazis strove desperately to repair the breach.

A communique declared the Canadians had "advanced further against strong opposition," and the U. S. army front from the north coast inland to captured Nicosia was "advanced in several places."

The whirlwind American assault had driven the Germans back about 20 miles in two days and threatened to trap the Nazis around Catania or force a general retreat toward Messina.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr.'s Seventh army was advancing beyond the strategic prize of Nicosia and exploiting the breakthrough made in temporary Nazi positions.

Canadians who captured Agira to the southeast, central pivot of the Mt. Etna line, were menacing Regalbuto, six miles to the east, and facing another bitter struggle.

Allied air power struck repeatedly in heavy new blows to shatter port facilities at Messina and Milazzo in Sicily and ranged over Italy to blast airports near Rome and Naples.

Allied torpedo aircraft sank a merchant ship and left two naval vessels afire as they intercepted Axis atempts to reinforce their hard-pressed forces.

One enemy plane was destroyed and four Allied planes failed to return from the wide sweeps.

U. S. Flying Fortresses rained explosives on the Viterbo air base and American mediums struck at the Aquino field near Naples.

(The Italian high command communique, broadcast from Rome and recorded by the Associated Press, said Sicilian defense troops were "still heavily engaged by renewed violent enemy attacks."

DEATH STAND: Japs Fiercely Resist Creeping Munda Drive

(By United Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific—The slow, hard fight to smash the death stand of the Japanese garrison at Munda is proceeding satisfactorily, Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today as a communique reported Allied gains on both sides of the 750-mile Southern Pacific front and the sinking or wrecking of two enemy destroyers and a transport.

Expressing his views through a spokesman, MacArthur said the Japanese had failed to halt the steady progress by American jungle troops who hacked out a new advance of 200 yards on New Georgia island, methodically destroying 14 enemy pillboxes. The spokesman also said that American and Australian troops captured one ridge near Salamau on the New Guinea northeast coast, occupied part of another and extended their lines.

Explaining the development of the Munda campaign into a yard-by-yard series of bitter skirmishes, he added that the Japanese had laid deeper defenses than ever met in New Guinea and were using every jungle trick they knew. The report indicated that previous field reports from the Central Solomons of Munda's imminent fall now were outdated.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless—Delayed)—After we had finished lunch out of our K rations in the shade made by the wing of our transport plane at a North African airfield, we climbed back in. In a couple of minutes the field was a dense cloud of dust as the mass of transport ships warmed up for the flight across to Sicily.

Clapper

We knew how German transport planes were shot down like ducks in the closing days of the Tunisian campaign. But now the Allies' air supremacy has made it possible for us to ferry large numbers of transports across without danger. That shows the difference between controlling the air and not controlling it.

We had as many fighters overhead for escort as there were transport planes. We flew in formation, very close to the water, so that no enemy could sneak up under us. Our fighter escort criss-crossed overhead. I have used the term "fighter cover" many times, but never before did I realize that it can be literally a cover. Directly over us was this mass of fighters, circling and sweeping the flanks of our formation, so that it would have been impossible for enemy planes to get near us. Actually no enemy planes were around. A fighter pilot told me he had not seen an enemy plane in the last five days, although he had been in the air most of that time.

As we got out over the water a redheaded, freckle-faced kid popped out of the operating compartment and told us to put on our Mae Wests. He said that if the plane was forced down it would float for 40 minutes, giving everybody plenty of time to get out.

The redhead proved to be the crew chief, Technical Sergeant Melvin Engel, of Portland, Ore. That made me homesick for Portland. I find that I get homesick for most any place you can name, if it is in the states, as I have been in most of them.

Our plane convoy was really an air freight train. We hauled six army jeeps over on that trip, plus much other material. These cargo planes are DC-3's, the same as American commercial passenger planes. They will haul 30 persons—I mean 30 using the metal bed-pan seats which you must ride on over here.

Almost before we had settled down we passed Pantelleria, rising like a big rock out of the Mediterranean. We could see the city clearly but were unable to distinguish any of the bomb damage, which I hope to see later.

We were traveling on a plane named "Father Time," which had been a second home to half a dozen of us for a few days. We flew in it from the air force command post to a Flying Fortress field for the Rome raid. After returning from Rome we flew in it to the main Allied headquarters in the rear, and then back to the forward command post, in all covering as much mileage in "Father Time" as we did on the Fortress trip to Rome.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—In analyzing our own brand of fascism, introduced and fostered by the New Deal government, we must keep in mind always that in each country which has fallen under fascism there were slight variations of method, although in every case the objective has been the same, the seduction and creeping subjugation of the people. Thus, certain fascistic moves which have been made by the unions in the United States, although they plainly have that objective, may have no exact parallel in any move that was made in either Italy or Germany. And thus, the authors of these stealthy attacks on the freedom of Americans and the integrity of the American system may plausibly deny that they are Fascists and defy anyone to cite any precedent from the books of Mussolini or Hitler.

Pegler

Let me, therefore, discuss a familiar process in our trend toward fascism or, if you prefer, toward communism, there being no essential difference between the two.

I have beside me a circular "approved for posting" on the bulletin boards of the Fleetwings airplane factory in Bristol, Pa., by Local 130, of the United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers of America, CIO.

"Acting under instructions from the international union," the circular says, "I have been ordered to collect the sum of $1, an assessment which has been levied on every member of our local union. This must be paid by July 10, 1943. Your steward will collect the money and give you a receipt for same. The purpose of this assessment is for organization needs for the UAW-CIO. The local receives none of this money as all is forwarded to the international union."

Now this, we know, is the same union that carried on a violent lawless insurrection in Michigan by the tolerance of Justice Frank Murphy of the United States supreme court when he was governor, a default of duty for which he was repudiated by the majority of the people of the state. It is also the same which, later, made another insurrection, this time against the interests, authority and safety of the United States of America and in the interests of Soviet Russia, at the North American Aviation plant in California.

Several leaders of that California insurrection which was denounced as the work of alien forces—hostile to this country by President Roosevelt, himself, were temporarily dismissed by the union as a political gesture but, since Pearl Harbor, have been restored to their old positions of power.

But examine the process here.

You, George Spelvin, American, with a son in the South Pacific are compelled to join this union as an imposition on your patriotism and your love of your son. You want to make airplanes, but you can't do it unless you join this union. You hate the outfit because you have followed its history and you resent coercion and trickery but your New Deal government, moving inexorably toward the subjugation of all Americans by starting with the workers, has sold you out to men whom the president, in a moment when it suited his purpose to be candid, denounced as enemies of your country.

You can't refuse to contribute to this fund to tighten the bonds on your own wrists. If you do refuse, you go under the closed shop or union maintenance shop. You have your choice. If you quit, that kid in the Solomons won't have your contribution to the aircraft production. If you stay on, paying as you are ordered to by your masters, you are helping to destroy at home those freedoms which the kid is fighting for. You are forging chains to be snapped on him the day he comes back if he ever does.

Now a covering letter addressed to "dear fellow member" says the union is not "demanding" this money, in flat contradiction of the notice on the board which says the financial secretary of the local has been "ordered to collect" it, and that it "must be paid." That is their usual way of giving you to believe you are a free man, just as an animal in a zoo thinks he is free until he tries to go past the bars which confine him.

But in the deepest cynicism, the covering letter tells you that because you have received a few paltry raises in inflated money with which to buy little luxuries, you will of course be glad to know that your money will be used to bribe congressmen to vote away your freedom and vote you into the New Deal's variation of fascism through corruption of the American law-making body.

"Sad as it may seem," says the covering letter, "in this great democracy of ours, congressmen must be greased, that is wined, dined and bribed for their votes, and they can be, very effectively. This greasing process costs a tidy sum with every session of congress. This is what your dollar goes for."

You will find no exact parallel of all this in the book of Mussolini or Hitler. It is a distinctive peculiarity of New Deal fascism. But it is fascism, nevertheless, although the real Fascists in your government and in the union movement will damn you as a labor-baiting Fascist for daring to say so.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

(Note: "Little" Mary Small, who has been a singing star since she was knee high to a microphone, has had a lot of ambitions fulfilled this year—best of the dreams-come-true being a featured role in the musical comedy "Early to Bed." In this column, Mary gets another wish.)

Mary Small Says—

If I weren't actively engaged as a singer, there's but one other vocation that I'd want to follow, and that is writing. I've tried my hand at innumerable short stories from time to time, and as proof of my secret ambition, I have acquired enough rejection slips to wallpaper my bedroom. Here is one of my briefer attempts at fiction—maybe I ought to call it "Why magazine editors go gray."

YOU'D NEVER KNOW HER—A short, short story by Mary Small.

"As I was saying Mrs. Davis, this guy never did right by the kid. She was sweet as they make 'em . . . and of course she would fall for him like a ton of cement. . . . Oh, sorry, hon, this file keeps slipping. You got awful nice moons on your nails. . . . He was handsome, rich, lots of friends. You know the kind. Quite natural he should get interested in a kid like Molly . . . somethin' different, ya know. Nobody exactly blamed him with her looks and cute ways.

"Well, after they was going steadier than raindrops for awhile, this guy goes to New York. He had a chain of department stores or something. I could never see a handsome, smooth guy like that in a burg like this anyway. Say what do you think of our town, Mrs. Davis? It's kind of a compliment that you came in our shop, being from a city like New York yourself . . . though there ain't a better manicure to be had for miles around.

"Well, gettin' back to Molly . . . when this bloke left town, who do you think follows him? Molly, of course. Funny about Molly. She always gave you the feeling she was from classy stock, head high and that sort of thing. You always forgot she was only Molly Flaherty from the South Side. Me, I always liked the kid a lot.

"The day she left I thought a hurricane blew her in . . . she ran in her so fast. She was all out of breath and said, 'Daisy . . . make me beautiful . . . it's the happiest day of my life.' Gosh, was she bubbling. Funny how when you're on the outside, you can see everything so clear. I knew she was being taken for a buggy ride . . . but how could I tell her that?

"So Molly leaves town. Her old man was fit to be tied. He told everyone he'd kill her for running out on him and the kids like that. . . . That was a couple of years ago, and no one 'round here had heard from Molly since. Oh, once in a while a New York paper would show up and there'd be something about this playboy guy of hers. One time they said somethin' about his gorgeous redhead, and once there was one of those pictures of them together. Molly just didn't look like the same kid.

"Well, you musta read what happened, in the papers, if you're from New York. Anyway, it seems this guy started doin' Molly dirt by chasin' around with some other gal. When the thing finally came to a show-down, the gal, I guess she was the take-it-hard type or somethin', she winds up throwin' a bottle of acid in Molly's face. Gee, Mrs. Davis, you've got the prettiest hair. I can see it ain't a henna job either . . . well, I hear the rat ran out on her. I guess he just didn't want her around looking that way. Oh sure, he gave her a lot of money, but what good is that? It'll never bring back that dollface of hers.

"What shade of polish do you want, Mrs. Davis. Oh! Polish makes you think of blood? Oh! Then . . . I'll just shine them with . . . with the buffer. That's one fifty. Oh . . . thank you, madam. Good . . . good-bye.

"So polish still makes her think of blood? Funny, how quiet she was and how I didn't recognize her. But I guess she hasn't changed so much at that."

WFA ALARMED AT SLOW SALES OF U. S. CORN

Predicts Shortage For Use of Industry; Other Source Sees Plenty of Food.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A highly authoritative spokesman in the war food administration today disclosed that corn is moving off farms into commercial channels at "an alarmingly slow rate" and predicted that the supply will fall far short of the 36,000,000 bushels needed for industrial use by Aug. 10.

Only 3,000,000 bushels were received by the commodity credit corporation during the past 10 days, he revealed, while commercial users alone require from five to six million bushels per week for industrial uses.

So far only 12,000,000 bushels of corn have been jarred loose from the nation's farms since the government a few weeks ago promised the farmer it would pay any difference in price due to raised price ceilings.

The spokesman pointed out that the price assurance, originally set until Oct. 31, would have to be extended in order to bring out more corn, not only for industrial purposes but for feeding in the northeastern states.

Meanwhile, it was also discovered that the CCC has ordered corn supplied to be distributed as follows:

1. Supply the wet processors (such as alcohol plants) with enough to fill their demands.

2. Allocate what's left to the dry processors (breakfast food concerns).

3. And if there still is some left, ship it to the dairy farmers in the eastern states.

CHICAGO — (U.P.) — No immediate shortage of basic foods faces the American people if price ceilings for farmers are relaxed intelligently, according to an analysis published today by the corn belt farm dailies.

The prediction was based on prospects of a "better than average" corn crop, which is vital to beef and pork production. Two months ago, the article said, "worry reached the hysteria stage" as rain prevented farmers from planting corn.

ON PROBATION

2 Boys In Court For Theft of Purse at Park.

Charged with stealing a purse containing a watch, indian bracelets and money, valued at $52.75, two 12-year-old Mansfield boys were today placed on probation to their parents by Juvenile Judge Stuart H. Cramer.

When found by city detectives the boys admitted stealing the purse belonging to Betty Pfleiderer, 60 Brickman avenue, from a bench at North Lake park pool July 17. The purse and all its contents were recovered.

One of the youths will be placed on a farm in accordance with an order from the judge. The other, a second offender, is on probation pending further order of the court.

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — Police picked up a 28-year-old woman wearing a soldier's uniform last night.

"I'm just crazy about a soldier's uniform," she told Police Sgt. Anthony Luciano. The uniform belonged to her brother. The MP's who took over the case gave the woman a strong sales talk about the opportunities presented by joining the WACs.

MAKES PLEA FOR MATERNITY AID

Rep. Bolton Tells Gov. Bricker Service Families Need Federal Help.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—A plea for Ohio to withdraw its rejection of a federal program to finance maternity care of servicemen's wives was addressed today to Gov. John W. Bricker by Rep. Frances P. Bolton, Cleveland Republican.

Mrs. Bolton said she telegraphed the governor from Cleveland that "wives and babies are in real need of this help," and recalled she had aided in obtaining congressional enactment of legislation setting up the plan now operating in most states.

"I trust that whatever misunderstanding may exist, will be promptly done away with so that Ohio may participate in this very adequate and necessary federal aid program," Mrs. Bolton said.

Governor Bricker at a recent press conference said he was in accord with Health Director R. H. Markwith, who rejected the federal plan after the Ohio State Medical association's council disapproved it.

Dr. Richard A. Bolt, director of Cleveland's Child Health association, said, meanwhile, he had been told by U. S. Senator Harold H. Burton, another Cleveland Republican, the program was "an aid which enlisted men and their families need badly."

Dr. Bolt asserted Dr. Markwith declined to put the program into effect "on the advice of a limited group of reactionaries in the medical profession, who feared the federal subsidy was an approach to socialized medicine."

The medical association council suggested an alternate plan and Dr. Markwith said he would participate in any discussions leading towards an acceptable program.

Up and Down THE STREET

Mansfield organizations and business places are taking advantage of the Mansfield Recreation board's generosity in lending athletic equipment for picnics. More than 900 used the equipment this week, Recreation Director Al Fendrick reported. The Farm Tools picnic, attended by 500, South Main Street Evangelical church picnic, with 250 present and the Knights of Columbus picnic, attended by 150, were so accommodated. The equipment can be obtained at Boy Scout headquarters. There is no charge.

Mansfielders who happened through Central Park this morning decided that fish will eat anything. More than that they have a sweet tooth. A man, evidently a chocolate fancier himself, thought it a good idea to share his chocolate with the fish. He tossed small bits of the candy to the fish and they pounced immediately upon it even fighting over which one had a right to the tasty morsel.

During the six weeks that Hidden Hollow camp has been in operation this summer, more than 220 boys and girls from the Friendly House have enjoyed the facilities of the camp. The seventh week begins next week and there are vacancies for a small number of both boys and girls, Russell Gimbel Friendly House director, said. Parents of those interested in attending the camp, should contact the Friendly House or visit the camp before Saturday noon, he said.

WAVES PRAISED ON ANNIVERSARY

President, Admiral King Laud Women's Reserve For Patriotic Service.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt today observed the first anniversary of the formation of the WAVES, congratulating the women's branch of the navy on their patriotic service in the present war which, he said, "must be fought for and defended by all the people."

"Once again," the president said, "the women of this free land stepped forward to prove themselves worthy descendants of those proud pioneer daughters who first nurtured freedom's flame.

Thousands of fighting men are now at battle stations because they were released from vital shore jobs by women within and wholly a part of the naval service. Other thousands will sail to meet the enemy as more women become available to take over these vital jobs ashore."

Praise for the WAVES also came from Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of the bureau of naval personnel, and Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the U. S. fleet and chief of naval operations.

Admiral King in summing up the measure of their achievement, said:

"The expectations of the navy in you have been justified by your hard work and sincere dedication to duty. You who are members of women's reserve have won the respect of the naval service by your acceptance of military requirements, readiness for responsibility and already valuable contribution to the work of winning the war."

The navy disclosed that there are now 27,000 WAVES.

Arm Shot Off, He Bails Out In Quest of Mercy

AMERICAN BOMBER BASE SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND— (U.P.)—A Flying Fortress gunner, his left arm shot off in battle, took a 100-to-one chance and baled out over enemy territory in the hope that German doctors could save his life, it was revealed today.

Second Lieut. Keith Koske of Milwaukee, Wis., navigator, said he knew the gunner, a staff sergeant, could not live until the plane returned to England.

"We talked it over and the sergeant agreed to try the only thing we knew might save his life," Koske said.

"I fastened the ripcord in his one hand and opened the escape hatch, but he was shaking and pulled the cord before he could jump. The parachute came out but I tucked it under his arm and he jumped. The ball turret gunner saw the chute open all right.

"Then I had to return to the nose to man the gun and the bombardier had to get to work as we were approaching the target."

Koske said the sergeant had lost his arm at the shoulder in a battle with German planes before the Fortress reached the target.

THREE MONTHS' MUSTERING OUT PAY SUGGESTED

FDR Approves Recommendation For Care of Fighters In Demobilization Period.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt released today, with his approval as to its general objectives, a report on demobilization and readjustment in the post-war period, which proposed among other things that service men be given three months' furlough at base pay, but not to exceed $100 a month, plus family allowances.

The report was drafted by a conference which Mr. Roosevelt established on post-war readjustment of civilian and military personnel and was made through the new defunct national resources planning board.

The report gave strong emphasis to the need for rapid conversion of industry to a peace time basis, while providing full employment. And it recognized that the bulk of employment should be supplied by private industry.

The committee's recommendations followed in a general manner the six-point program for servicemen which the president outlined in his address Wednesday, but it went into greater detail.

The text of the committee's six-point program:

"1. Three months furlough at regular base pay not to exceed $100 a month, plus family allowances.

"2. Beyond that time, if necessary, unemployment insurance for 26 weeks for those who register with the United States employment service.

"3. Special aid and counsel regarding readjustment and rehabilitation.

"4. Special provision, including tuition and allowances, for those who wish to pick up the broken threads of their education or follow some special course of training.

"5. Veterans' credit for old age and survivors insurance on the basis of service in the armed forces.

"6. Opportunities for agricultural employment and settlement to be provided for a limited number of qualified servicemen. But in general, agriculture should not be looked upon as a dumping ground for the industrial unemployed, since the problem is broader than that of agriculture alone."

The committee apparently came out against any large lump sum bonus, such as that which congress voted over the president's veto for World war I veterans.

"America's most widely read war correspondent"
Ernie Pyle
If some friend of yours at the war front wrote to tell you what was happening and what things looked like and whom he had met and talked to, the chances are that his letter would cover pretty much the same ground as one of Ernie Pyle's columns.
Pyle leaves the official news to the regular news writers, and himself writes about what strikes him personally, as he roams around, as most likely to interest you: what soldiers talk about and kick about and argue about, the songs and the food they like best; what a cross-country ride in a jeep does to your constitution and what an enemy shell headed your way does to your stomach.
You live the war from day to day as you read Pyle's column, you come to understand, as if you were with them, the men who are fighting it for you. That is why "America's most widely read war correspondent" is every day becoming still more widely read.

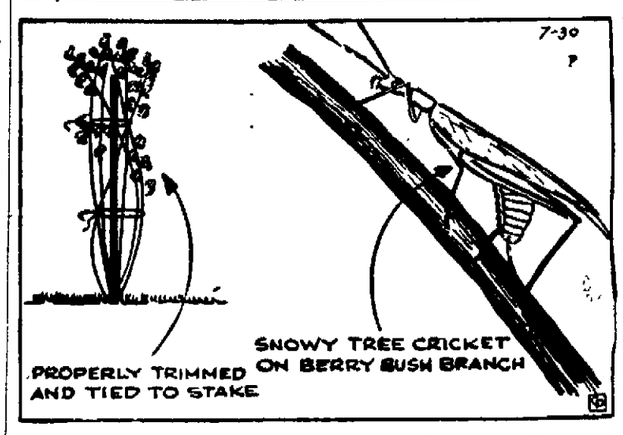
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Berry Bushes In Victory Garden Need Watching.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association.

If YOU have found split and broken canes on the berry bushes in your Victory garden, suspect the egg-laying activities of the snowy tree cricket.

The snowy tree cricket, illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, uses raspberry, loganberry, blackberry and other bushes as well as certain fruit trees as a depository for its eggs.

Small round holes about the diameter of a pin are drilled singly in the twigs or brambles. In each hole, which extends into the cambium or sapwood, the tree cricket deposits a single pale-yellow egg, about one-eighth inch long. These egg punctures ofter serve as the entrance points for tree and bramble diseases. Canes frequently die above these punctures, and where they are numerous, the canes split and break off. The female tree cricket deposits her eggs in the fall, and there is only one generation each year.

After fruiting raspberry bushes should be pruned back to about six or eight of the strongest young shoots, as illustrated in the Garden-Graph. The picture shows a red raspberry bush which has been properly trimmed and trained, and tied to a stake. Unless raspberries are trained and kept in place they soon became a thicket of suckers, each one crowding the other and competing for the food and moisture in the soil.

WHAT DO SOLDIERS MISS MOST? THEIR WIVES, HOMES, BABIES

DENVER—The army men of the second World war are no exceptions to the rule that soldiers hate most of all the sounding of reveille.

The "Roving Reporter" of the Fort Logan, Colo., News and Views, sought to learn "what a soldier misses most after induction into the army?"

Here are some of the answers he was given:

Pvt. James Connors, 20, former Boston drugstore clerk: "The right to stay in bed until I feel like getting up; home cooking; the smell of the sea; Boston common and Boston baked beans; sleeping late in the morning; the sight of an elevated train; a mongrel dog; a certain young lady who might not be glamorous but who is wonderful in my eye; and sleeping until a 'decent hour'."

Pvt. Robert K. King, 28, Waterford, N. Y., production expediter: "Individual freedom, wearing the kind of clothes I want, doing what I wanted to, sleeping when I wanted to, but since it is the regulation of the army to obey, I find it most convenient to do so."

Pvt. Robert R. Carson, 19, Newburgh, N. Y., office clerk: "The bed I used to have at home. It had a feather mattress. When I laid on it, it buried me amidst heaps of warm blankets. I looked forward to that every night as a haven of peaceful rest. And there wasn't any bugle in the morning.'

Pvt. Robert W. Howlett, 25, Portland, Me., vice-president of a fish-packing concern: "My wife, my home, my baby, my sleep until 7:30 a. m.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Those miniature gold track shoes, which designate the wearer as a member of a championship team, have finally arrived for Mansfield Tyger scanty-clads of last spring, track Tutor Harry the Merry Mehock announced today.

And since the Merry one is too busy these days, working at Tappan's and in his victory garden, to tour the city and countryside distributing the shoes to the noble athletes, it will be necessary for winners of the trinkets to go after them.

The boys can get the shoes, Harry says, at the (plug) Fox jewelry store.

While this announcement takes the distributive duty off Harry's shoulders, the Merry one still is charged with getting the footwear to his heroes in the armed service.

Which means that an early mail will take the shoes to Howard Herrick, Louie Nameth, Bill Eichler and Frank Beckel in service camps.

Got those come-again-seven blues
Baby needs a new pair shoes.

I haven't heard from my friend Frankie Balbaugh the last few days, so I can't say for certain that Frankie is still looking for a team to beat his Westinghouse softballers. But I rather guess Frankie is still carrying on a search that has suddenly proven entirely too successful.

First there was that 1-0 loss at Lorain, then a team of Mansfield kid all-stars pour it on 7-5, and then the Westies soak up a trouncing at Ashland in which they had to turn out the lights to stop the Ashland parade around the paths.

But if a guy goes looking for a licking, I guess he can take it when he gets it. I've heard no whimpers from Westinghouse.

I've always said the best way to put together a winning team in city league competition, baseball, softball or basketball, is to get a bunch of kids of proven ability, who still have the steam to get in there and go when the going gets tough, and the fighting spirit that overlooks dope sheets and past performances.

Flick Flockenzier and his kids have shown I'm right. They might not be able to beat Westinghouse again, but it's a cinch the Westies wouldn't suffer from over-confidence if they played the kids again.

I hear the kids are kinda chesty
Since they put the whammo on the Westies.

Clay Carnival Opens Aug. 25

Grand American Shoot To Be Streamlined.

VANDALIA —(AP)— This Miami county village will stage its 20th consecutive Grand American Trapshoot Aug. 25, 26 and 27, but the 44-year-old Clay Target carnival will be a streamlined affair because of war-occasioned changes.

Practically every angle will be shifted to some extent. The No. 1 feature—the $10,000 Grand American handicap—will revert to a 100-target affair after a one-year trial in 1942 as a 200-target classic.

The usual eight-day program has been cut to three days, only 500 targets will be thrown, instead of the usual 1,900, for each full-route contestant. Thirteen championships will be decided on the opening day's 200 targets at 16 yards, instead of being spread over 1,000 targets.

The second day's firing calls for 50 pairs of targets for the doubles championship and 100 at handicaps in the preliminary warmup for the "roaring grand" finale, which calls for another 100 handicap targets the final day.

Other changes call for each marksman to bring his own shells, none being available for sale on the grounds. Until this year the shooters were required to buy ammunition on the grounds. This year no practice traps will be in operation.

Ammunition shortages, rationing and travel restrictions brought the changes. The program slash will permit each full-route contestant to save 56 boxes of shells, or 1,400 rounds.

Pale Hose Take Over 2nd Place

Round Man With Cigar Puts Sox Where They Are.

By SID FEDER
(AP Sports Writer)

MISS SECRETARY, isn't it about time we got off that early letter to the round man? It is?

Well, then, let's dash off that little dictation to James Joseph Dykes and his cigar. Why—well, James Joseph and his White Sox are in second place in the American league this morning, and before he starts getting grand ideas about bowling a 300 game as the next miracle, somebody'd better get him down out of the clouds. So, let's stick a pin in the balloon while it's still within sticking range. Start cooking, Miss Secretary:

Dear Jimmy:

You'll probably get this in Washington with your Sox, unless you've ducked out and are trying to roll that 'hot' game in Philly at this writing. Anyway, here's your annual pat on the back. We see by the papers you're doing it with mirrors again. Are those looking glasses making you feel any better about that waistline?

All we wanted to say, Jimmy, was that we're still glad you're around. Not only because you're still trying for that 300 game, but also because if you weren't on tap, the Yankees would get the idea no one wanted to be in the American league's first division with them. Right now, it looks like you're going to wind up with your sixth first division White Sox club in the nine years you've been steering the Southsiders.

You've been saying all along that Gordon the Schmaltz Maltzberger is a handy guy to have around—and you proved it last night. He'd won only two games—and that isn't Schmaltz, is it?—But last night you asked Gordon the question with the tying run on third and the winning run on second. And Gordon had the answer. He fanned Bob Johnson to give you a 5-4 decision over the Washington Senators.

Going into yesterday, you and the Cleveland Indians and the Detroit Tigers were all tied up in second place. Then the Indians were given the old Yankee treatment in New York and the Tigers were postponed in Boston—and there you were.

You might feel sorry for the Indians. Lefty Marius Russo handcuffed them with a two-hitter and beat them 11-1. Naturally, you have felt the same bruises yourself.

That was the only fun in your league yesterday and last night, since the Tigers and the St. Louis Brownies wound up on the short end in a couple of rassels with old man weather in Boston and Philadelphia.

But over in the National league, the Phoolish Phillies' new manager, fat Freddie Fitzsimmons, found out the score in a hurry. His Phils chalked up two runs for a 2-1 decision over St. Louis in a playoff of their protested game continued from June 5. Then the Cardinals got peeved and won 13-5 in yesterday's regularly scheduled shindig.

The only other taffy-pull saw Johnny Vander Meer fan 11 and walk nine to bell-cow the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-3 decision over the Boston Braves.

Gil and Gunder Go at Berea

Gunder Haegg, Sweden's world famous champion, and Gil Dodds, former Ashland college star and Boston divinity student, have become friendly rivals in their series of distance races in the United States. They meet again tomorrow at Baldwin-Wallace college, Berea, O., and the scribes are talking again of a four-minute mile for Gunder.

Rounders Made Favorite In Arlington Handicap Race

By TOMMY DEVINE

CHICAGO— (U.P.) — Racing's upset king, the Valdina farm's Rounders, assumes the new and unfamiliar role of a stake favorite tomorrow.

The Irish-bred colt who has scored the greatest triumphs of his career when pitted against big name horses that figured to beat him handily, likely will go the post the solid betting choice in the $50,000 added Arlington handicap.

With a mediocre three year old racing record, Rounders plunged into prominence in this lucrative stake a year ago when he finished three and a half lengths in front of the money-winning champion, Whirlaway.

After that startling victory, Rounders went back into the class of "ordinary" and stayed there until the Stars and Stripes handicap here early this month. Then the Valdina color-bearer reversed form again, administering a sound whipping to a good field that included the odds-on favorite, Devil Diver.

In the 1942 Arlington handicap and the Stars and Stripes, Rounders had important "pulls" in the weight. Tomorrow the role will be reversed and the four year old chestnut will be forced to spot a scale advantage to every other starter. Many a favorite has been beaten in the racing secretary's office and Rounders must prove his ability to pick up a heavy impost and still go the mile and a quarter route.

Rounders will carry 124 pounds tomorrow and will spot other starters from six to 24 pounds.

L. B. Mayer's Thumbs Up, second in the Stars and Stripes and recent winner of the $80,000 Butler handicap at Empire City, is expected to be the second choice in the wagering. Thumbs Up will carry 118 pounds.

Other probable nominees for the last of the 21 stakes on the Arlington park schedule are: Marriage, Some Chance, Sun Again, Askmenow, Mar-kell, Aletern, Anticlimax, King's Abbey, Take Wing, and Aonbarr.

Askmenow one of the two fillies likely to start, has been assigned only 100 pounds and may be dangerous.

Haegg Tries For Record

Meets Dodds Again at Baldwin-Wallace.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Gunder Haegg, conditioned to record breaking trim, was to arrive in Cleveland today where he again will bid for a new world mark in the mile at Baldwin-Wallace college Saturday evening.

Haegg, who has been training throughout this week at Harvard university, is expected to draw a crowd of 5,000 to the Northeastern Ohio A. A. U. Outdoor Track meet when he faces three opponents. Gil Dodds, Boston Divinity student, Bill Hulse, N. Y. U. distance star, and Les Eisenhart, former western conference mile champion, will force the pace for the Swedish ace.

Haegg, who reduced the American mile mark to 4:05.3 at Boston a week ago, is expected to be forced to the limit by Dodds, former Ashland, O., college cross country ace. The Boston Divinity student ran one of his finest races at Boston and also bettered Glenn Cunningham's mark as he finished second.

At Baldwin Wallace, Dodds will be running before fans who cheered him to his first recognition while still a college student from a whistle stop. In addition, he holds the Baldwin Wallace track mile record of 4.22 which indicates how far he has come since his collegiate efforts.

Eddie Finnegan, in charge of the meet, announced today that the Baldwin Wallace track, recognized as one of the finest in the country is in top condition for the efforts of Gunder to create a four-minute mile.

War Goes To FDR

Hope Held Out For Competition By Army.

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— The campaign against the Army's sports ban was carried to President Roosevelt today with the chief exhibit being the fact that the value of "collision training" in body contact athletics was proven in the foxholes of Bataan.

Rep. Samuel A. Weiss of Pennsylvania disclosed at the convention of eastern athletic directors that the question of soldier trainees participating in intercollegiate athletics had been taken to the president for final settlement. He held that men who had participated in "physical violence" sports were better conditioned to the shock of warfare.

John B. Kelly, former Olympic oarsman who now heads the national physical fitness committee, supported the congressman's stand.

"I believe that at the beginning of the war the army was held up by men with sports training," Kelly said. "They held the line in such places as the Philippines until the rest of us got in shape to fight for our lives."

"The situation is dark—but it isn't hopeless," declared Weiss, in revealing that 256 congressmen had signed a petition and sent it to Acting Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson demanding that the army fall in line with the navy in permitting sports participation for student trainees.

"Secretary of Navy Frank Knox told me that he liked football men because they react quickly and instinctively," Weiss said. "Knox told me he likes those jitterbug kids who don't need a second aim but give it to the enemy—bang, bang, bang."

In support of their point the sports advocates told of incidents in which American soldiers, trained in body contact sports, were victorious both in mind and muscle over "muscle jerks"—the bicept-bulging gymnasium products of the foe.

This ban has caused a regrettable situation," Weiss said, "because the boys are willing to play on their own time—and the boys out there in the jungles and the foxholes want them to keep on playing. I've had letters from out there, from the steaming jungles of Guadalcanal and New Guinea, pleading for the continuation of sports. Their greatest joy is a short wave sports broadcast or a six-weeks-old paper with sporting news."

War time hysteria caused England to drop sports at the start of the war, Weiss explained, but it since has reinstated them with at least four events drawing crowds exceeding 75,000.

"Several games were halted by air raid alarms and the fans would duck for the shelters," he said. "But after the all clear, they'd come right back and watch the finish of the game. If they can do this—despite the Luftwaffe—what's the matter with America?"

Hunters Should Use Conscience

WASHINGTON— (AP) —Standard equipment for hunting this fall should include one conscience.

Blasting away at game just for the heck of it will be considered unpatriotic. What's more, if that's your idea when you buy shells, keep it to yourself or the hardware clerk is entitled to ring up "no sale." You're supposed only to kill off "pests" that prey on crops.

A few weeks ago, officials indicated the army of nimrods could expect a little ammunition—none to throw away, but enough to have some sport.

Today, however, some authorities in the war production board showed an indication to qualify that in this way:

Hunters probably will get "limited quantities" of ammunition but not for sport purposes, purely.

They must sternly repress any pleasure and remember they are out to prevent crop damage from too-plentiful numbers of game.

Although huge quantities of hunting-size ammunition is being manufactured, it is absorbed by army air force and other branches of the military for training gunnes.

Indians Trounced By Yanks

Drop Back Into Fourth Place In Standings.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The lustrous record of the Cleveland Indians' eastern trip—seven victories in nine games—was tarnished today as the Tribe reeled back into fourth place, victims of an old-fashioned New York Yankee outburst.

Held to two hits by Marius Russo, the Indians were overwhelmed 11 to 1 as the McCarthymen lashed out 14 safe blows including homers by Charley Keller, Joe Gordon and Bud Metheny.

The victory was sweet revenge for Russo, victim of a 12-run inning and a 12 to 0 defeat in Cleveland July 2.

Vernon Kennedy started on the mound for the Indians and was charged with the defeat. He was relieved in the third by Chubby Dean, who gave up four hits in one and a third inning. Pete Center came to pitch in the fifth.

The only Tribal accomplishment was the infield's 100th double play of the season to lead the league in that department.

Jim Bagby seeks his 11th win in today's series windup against Ernie Bonham.

IN OLD FORM

CINCINNATI— (AP) —It looked like old times out there at the ball park last night, with Johnny Vander Meer walking nine men and hitting a tenth, but striking out 14 to win his game.

That was the story of his 1938 season, when he had his two no hitters.

The Boston Braves were the modern victims and the score was 4 to 3. The game, a playoff of Wednesday night's postponed American Red Cross relief go, netted about $26,000.

It seemed that Vandy got the ball over the plate only by accident, but when he did the Boston batters needed micrometers for bats. Just to add the proper touch, Vandy got all three of the Braves' ninth-inning hopefuls, each going down swinging.

Johnny only had two hurtful innings, the first and the eighth. In the first two walks and a single made a run, and in the eighth Phil Masi, pinch-hitting for Manny Salvo, singled two more in. Two singles and only one walk preceded this.

Red Barrett and Nate Andrews for the Braves and Elmer Riddle and Ray Starr for the Reds are the pitchers for today's doubleheader.

Red Birds Climb To Second Place

(By Associated Press)

While Milwaukee and Indianapolis have been arguing about the American Association leadership, Columbus has slipped into second place by winning 18 of its last 26 games.

The Red Birds beat St. Paul 9 to 1 last night to sweep a four-game series. They shelled veteran Art Herring for 12 hits.

The Red Birds flew into second place ahead of Indianapolis when Milwaukee tripped the Tribe in a morning contest, 7-1.

Minneapolis gained the first division with a four-run outburst in the ninth inning against Toledo and a 5-4 decision in 11 frames.

Kansas City became mired deeper in the cellar as Louisville blasted 14 hits off Jack Fallon for a 9-2 win.

Huge Fire Raging Through Chicago Grain Elevators

UNEXPLAINED BLAST CAUSES GIANT BLAZE

Half Million Dollar Plant Destroyed, Freight Cars, Automobile Crushed.

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO — A great fire, raging unchecked for hours, threatened a loss of at least a half million dollars today at the huge Norris Grain company's midwest elevators on Chicago's south side.

The blaze, starting from an unexplained explosion in the main elevator, spread to one and another of the 40 silos and small elevators owned by the company.

The flames destroyed the main elevator, which towers about 200 feet high, and in turn attacked the entire battery of 40 steel silo tanks which are more than 100 feet high.

Virtually the entire plant was destroyed as the flames raged uncontrolled.

Between a fifth and a sixth of Chicago's fire apparatus was called to the scene as the flames leaped rapidly from one building another.

Three employes were injured, two seriously. An automobile was crushed flat by falling walls and debris.

Two freight cars met the same fate and the Pennsylvania railroad lines there were completely tied up.

Damage from the explosion alone, which occurred in the main elevator, was estimated at $100,000.

Fire department officials said it might have been a grain dust explosion.

Many of the elevators were said to contain soy beans.

Residents in the immediate neighborhood were ordered to leave their homes because of the danger these too might take fire. Dense smoke was thrown over much of the far south side.

Those injured were Timony Spratt, 50, stationary engineer; Alex Gaiches, 76, watchman, and Frank Ziegler, 61.

Gaiches suffered a crushed chest and severe burns; Ziegler severe burns, and Spratt a broken leg and a possible skull fracture. The latter said:

"I saw a tremendous burst of flame and then debris began to rain down on me."

The three employes were injured by a blast in the dust room, a structure immediately south of the towering 200-foot main elevator, which was surrounded by the smaller elevators and silos.

So powerful was the blast that 10-ton scale hoppers, atop the big elevator, were jarred loose and fell to the ground.

Superintendent R. A. Anderson said the Silos were filled with soy bean products. They contained, he said, 250,000 bushels of soy beans, 250,000 bushels of soy bean meal and an undetermined quantity of soy bean oil.

DESCRIBES BATTLE SCENE, CITES NEED FOR MORE WAR MATERIAL

Emphasizing the increasing need of more and more production of material for a long-drawn naval war against the Japanese by presenting an eye-witness account of the battle of Savu island last November, Fire Controlman Edgar L. Harrison yesterday related the saga of the U. S. S. San Francisco before employes and guests of the Ideal Electric and Manufacturing company.

Harrison's story was one of courage and heroism of American men and boys who fought to their last shell off Guadalcanal and who worked ceaselessly to keep their torn and battered cruiser afloat after the battle, bringing her across the world to an American repair base.

"Our ship was hit 15 times by enemy 14-inch shells and there were 25 fires aboard at one time," Harrison related.

"Our bridge was shot away carrying Rear Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan to his death. The first battle lasted only 32 minutes but it seemed a lifetime. On one occasion our guns ceased firing for 20 seconds and it seemed like years. Later we tackled a Japanese battleship that looked as large as the Empire State building. She was three times our size and her guns were superior but American guts and determination fired everything we had and we sunk her.

"It is hard for one at home to visualize the navy's needs—but believe me when I urge all industrial workers to greater effort to meet the demands ahead—our few minor victories are only preliminary skirmishes.

"Too, in what might be the lighter phase of sea warfare, imagine yourself carrying a cigaret around all day looking for a match. Imagine going months without mail, the taste of candy or a really cold drink."

Controlman Harrison was accompanied by Lieut. Comdr. Louis H. Brendel of the incentive division of the Cleveland inspection office of navy materiel. At the mass rally of Ideal workers brief remarks were made by S. Glen Vinson, company president. Fred Norris, public relations director, acted as master of ceremonies.

For two hours Harrison and Brendel visited shop workers at their machines. Harrison, 22, and a veteral of several years of naval service, praised Ideal motors and generators which are a part of the equipment of nearly every U. S. battle craft.

TRUCK UPSETS

But Cows Don't Mind, They Find Grazing Spot.

A truck load of cattle upset at Main and First streets at 1 p. m. today and for a time the straying cows provided the driver and city police with a perplexing problem.

The truck loaded with cows—they strayed from the scene so quickly that it was impossible to count them—turned over on its side when the load shifted.

Traffic on Main street was stalled for a few minutes while the cows — some thought there were about 20—were removed from the truck. Most of them walked west on First street, saw a chance for pasture under the Mulberry street viaduct and stayed there, grazing contentedly.

Present Gift to Banker Retiring After 48 Years

A gift which he described as the "finest fishing tackle I ever saw" from his fellow employes at the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank was prized today by Cashier Robert S. Gibson, who will retire at noon tomorrow after 48 years of service with the bank.

The gift, which includes a rod and automatic reel, was presented to the veteran banker last night at his home by B. B. Banks and Sherman A. Wentz, representing the bank officials and employes.

The new fishing equipment is going to come in handy, too, for Mr. and Mrs. Gibson plan to leave about the middle of August for Lake Sebago, Me., where they will vacation until October.

An expert angler, Gibson plans to do all the fishing now that he's wanted to get done for a long time.

He has no definite plans for the fall and winter, but he said today he anticipates no trouble in finding something to do.

"I've got my grandchildren, my lawn, and my stamp hobby to keep me busy," he said.

After the war, the Gibsons want to travel extensively, visiting some of the interesting places they have been reading about.

Sees Mansfield Reach Goal In War Stamp Sale

From all present indications, Mansfield will meet its goal of $40,000 in war stamps in the Shangri-La war stamp drive, W. L. Faulkner, campaign chairman, said today.

All Mansfielders are being asked to buy $1 worth of war stamps. The campaign is being waged in connection with the current Dollar Day sales being conducted in stores today and tomorrow.

Faulkner also urged the citizens who have purchased the stamps, to wear the tags which were given them at the time of purchase while downtown. Clerks in the stores will not ask persons wearing the tags to purchase more stamps.

The Shangri-La days continue through Saturday. Funds raised from the drive over the United States will be used to purchase a new aircraft carrier called the Shangri-La.

START WORK ON R-42 MONDAY

Workmen To Begin Widening, Resurfacing of Lexington, Main Intersection.

Preliminary work on the widening and resurfacing project at the intersection of South Main street and Lexington avenue is scheduled to start Monday, state highway department spokesmen said today.

The Mansfield Asphalt Paving company, which holds the contract for the work, is using its resurfacing equipment on an Ashland project now, and actual resurfacing of the two main thoroughfares in Mansfield probably won't get under way until about Aug. 15, it was said.

Included with South Main street and Lexington avenue in the $75,000 street job are sections of Marion avenue and Park avenue west which were badly damaged by weather during the past winter and spring.

The heavily-traveled intersection of State Route 13 and U. S. Route 42 (South Main and Lexington) will be widened and two pedestrian safety islands will be built. Both streets will be resurfaced with black-top materials over their entire length of the city.

Marion avenue will be improved between Glessner and Cline avenues and Park avenue west between West Park drive and Linden road.

GETS PRIORITY

City Given Rating For New Fire Pumper Purchase.

The War Production board today virtually opened the way for the purchase of another new fire pumper this year by the city of Mansfield.

Mayor W. J. Locke said the WPB advised the city that priority rights could be extended to permit the purchase of the engine and urged that the application be filed as soon as possible.

The 750-gallon pumper which the city wants to buy would be purchased from fire levy funds to supplement and modernize present fire equipment. The pumper would be similar to the one the city purchased last spring for use at the No. 1 fire station.

After final approval of the prospective purchase is received from the WPB, the order will be placed for the pumper.

SPOTS TIMBER

GLENWOOD, Wash. — (INS) — Cruising timber in the Glenwood area would be good training for prospective commandos, in the opinion of Dr .D. G. Marckworth, opinion of Dr. D. G. Marckworth, ton college of Forestry.

Dr. Marckworth recently completed six weeks of cruising and mapping timber holdings with advanced forestry students as the final class work of the school year. "Scaling these canyon walls is the best pre-military training I know of," Prof. Marckworth said.

BUYS BAYONETS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — (INS) — Weapons used 80-odd years ago in the Civil war have been dug out of an old curio shop by Adj. Gen. T. A. Frazier for use by the Tennessee State Guard. They consist of 4,200 antique bayonets, purchased at 15 cents apiece, plus the scabbards at 10 cents each.

Rusted with age when uncovered in a storeroom of a New York arms and curio shop, the old-time instruments of war were shipped to Tennessee and are now being refurbished in a state institution for distribution to the shotgun companies of the guard.

Clothing Store Sales Rise To Peak Levels During First Half-Year.

NEW YORK—The stock market today resumed its advance, in moderately active dealings, adding to the gains scored in Thursday's rally.

Ahead fractionally at the start were Bethlehem, with a good earnings statement to attract interest, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Western Union, Southern Railway, and Chrysler.

Holders of merchandising shares noted the department of commerce report that apparel store sales rose to peak levels of $2,900,000,000 during the first half of the year, a gain of 25 per cent over the 1942 period. This was weighed with Dun & Bradstreet's summary showing trade during the past week 9 to 13 per cent above similar 1942 figures.

JAPS MAKING DEATH STAND AT MUNDA BASE

Allies Gain In Southwest Pacific, Wreck Three More Jap Ships.

Ground forces inching toward Salamaua, big enemy base on the New Guinea coast, moved forward to threaten the Japanese supply trails through the jungle as Liberators, Flying Fortresses and Mitchells, in six separate attacks, dropped 94 tons of bombs in the Salamaua area in 17 minutes yesterday.

A ridge named "Vickers Machinegun" was taken 1300 yards southwest of Bobdubi, four miles from Salamaua, while U. S. forces attacked and occupied part of Roosevelt ridge between Tambu bay and Dot peninsula eight miles north of Nassau bay. Allied positions also were extended southwest of Orodubi and on Sugar Cane ridge in sharp skirmishes.

Checking a previous attack that left an enemy destroyer and a transport afire off Cape Gloucester, New Britain, Allied fliers found that their bombs had sunk a second destroyer and forced the two burning ships onto the beach. They renewed the assaults and demolished the beached destroyer and wrecked the transport, shooting down three intercepting enemy fighters.

Medium bombers, in a night attack on Koepang, Timor, and the adjacent Penfoei airdrome, set fires visible 50 miles and scored direct hits among parked motor transport, barracks and military installations.

In the Solomons area, planes sank two barges docked in Webster cove on Kolombangara island.

TELLS NEUTRALS NOT TO HARBOR AXIS LEADERS

President Also Says U. S. Will Treat With Any Non-Fascist on Peace Settlement.

Roosevelt's statement concerning the trial of war criminals:

"On August 21, 1942, I issued a statement to the press in which after referring to the crimes against innocent people committed by the Axis powers I stated:

"'The United Nations are going to win this war. When victory has been achieved, it is the purpose of the government of the United States, as I know it is the purpose of each of the United Nations, to make appropriate use of the information and evidence in respect to the barbaric crimes of the invaders, in Europe and in Asia.

"'It seems only fair that they should have this warning that the time will come when they shall have to stand in courts of law in the very countries which they are now oppressing and answer for their acts.'

"On Oct. 7, 1942, I stated that it was 'the intention of this government that the successful close of the war shall include provisions for the surrender to the United States of war criminals.

"The wheels of justice have turned constantly since those statements were issued and are still turning. There are now rumors that Mussolini and members of his Fascist gang may attempt to take refuge in neutral territory.

"One day Hitler and his gang and Tojo and his gang will be trying to escape from their countries. I find it difficult to believe that any neutral country would give asylum to or extend protection to any of them. I can only say that the government of the United States would regard the action by a neutral government in affording asylum to Axis leaders or their tools as inconsistent with the principles for which the United Nations are fighting and that the United States government hopes that no neutral government will permit its territory to be used as a place of refuge or otherwise assist such persons in any effort to escape their just desserts."

Reports Arrest of Fascist Leaders

LONDON —(AP)— Transocean, German propaganda agency, reported today that all members of the Italian Fascist grand council except one had been arrested.

It did not identify the exception, except to say he was "particularly radical," nor did it give any reason for his escape.

Members of the now outlawed council included Benito Mussolini, Count Galeazzo Ciano, his son-in-law; Carlo Scorza, secretary of the Fascist party; Roberto Farinacci, former secretary of the Fascist party; Count Dino Grandi; Marshal Emilio De Bono Guiseppe Bastiani, former secretary of the grand council; Luigi Federzzoni, and other widely known Italians.

British Cabinet In Unusual Session

LONDON —(U.P.)— The British war cabinet met in extraordinary session at 1:30 a. m. (BDST) today, for an unannounced purpose but possibly to discuss an Italian peace feeler or to set a deadline for a reply to Allied terms from Marshal Pietro Badogho.

The meeting, which lasted for two hours, came less than 24 hours after Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme Allied commander in the Mediterranean, broadcast to Italy an offer to arrange an immediate and honorable peace encompassing "mild and beneficient" occupation and the return of Italian prisoners to their homeland.

In the house of commons, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said the government's position regarding Italy was 'precisely as defined' previously by Prime Minister Winston Churchill. But in connection with the government's refusal to hold a general war debate at present, Eden said

"Should there be some marked change in the situation—and week ends sometimes produce a changed situation in Europe—the government would of course reconsider their attitude. . . ."

Eden said the government approved Eisenhower's message to the Italians.

Hamburg Hit By Another Giant Raid

LONDON —(AP)— RAF bombers dropped more than 2,000 tons of explosives on Hamburg last night, it was announced today, giving that great north German port its seventh pounding since Saturday night.

The air ministry said the attack was made "in very great strength" and that the delivery of explosives was accomplished despite increased ground defenses and numerous German fighters.

Twenty-eight bombers were reported missing. A half dozen enemy planes were destroyed on this and other raids, the air ministry said.

The massive attack stirred speculation that Hamburg was being made the subject of an Allied experiment to determine whether a city that large could be paralyzed completely from the air.

Results achieved in the persistent day and night bombing of Germany's second largest city and submarine nest were viewed as likely to determine the pattern of the air war for the next few months

In this connection it was noted that lengthening nights would bring Berlin itself within the range of heavy day and night bombings by October or November

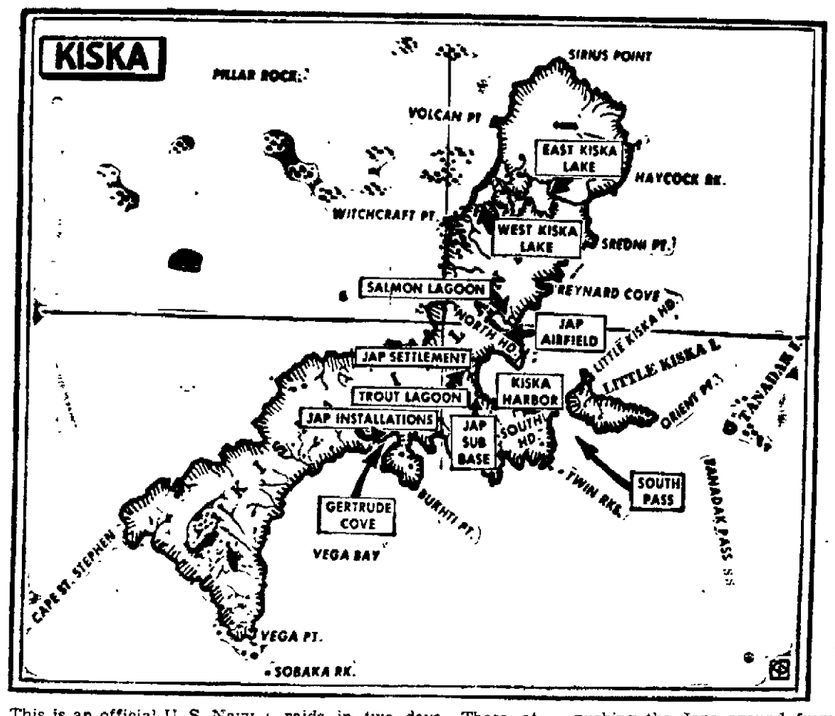
Nazis Fail to Check Orel Drive

MOSCOW—(AP)—German forces fighting desperately to hold Orel at all costs brought in fresh units from France and Germany yesterday but failed to check the crushing Soviet drive, the Russians announced today.

When knee-deep mud and driving rain threatened for a time to slow their massive tanks and infantry the Red army turned to a cavalry charge to throw the Germans from three fortified positions, front line dispatches said Nazi forces giving under the weight of the charge were reported to have left 600 dead and large quantities of arms behind.

A Soviet communique said upwards of 3,000 Germans were killed at Orel's approaches and gains up to six miles were registered as 40 additional villages were occupied yesterday.

U. S. Fliers Pound Jap Kiska Defenses



This is an official U. S. Navy map showing Jap installations on Kiska island which have been the target of 19 U. S. air raids in two days. These attacks plus President Roosevelt's assertion in his radio broadcast that "in the Pacific we are pushing the Japs around from the Aleutians to New Guinea," point to an early invasion of Kiska, according to military observers.

U. S. TROOPS IN WHIRLWIND PUSH

Reuters translated a Rome transmission as saying the Axis forces were "being tried sorely and without respite" by the Allied offensive.

(The Italian bulletin said enemy raids over some localities of Lazio and Campania caused small losses and a twin-engined plane was shot down over Naples.)

Blockbuster attacks were mounted Wednesday night against Capodichino, near Naples, and Montecorvino. Allied crews reported rolling blankets of smoke covered all these targets

Airdrome facilities of Viterbo, 50 miles northeast of Rome, were shattered by precision bombing of the Fortresses, which encountered no enemy fighters and only a small barrage from ground batteries, officers said.

The battle of Sicily appeared to have entered its final phases as American forces stormed through a breach in the German right flank and threatened either to trap the Nazi defenders of Catania or force a general Axis retreat toward Messina.

The Americans' success yesterday in taking Nicosia at the base of the Axis triangle, and the victory of their Canadian allies at Agira about 12 miles to the southeast, were termed the most important strategical developments of the past week

The twin break-throughs placed the Americans within 50 miles of Taormina, on the east coast about 28 miles north of Catania, where the British Eighth army has been fought to a virtual standstill by powerful German armored forces.

The Canadians' advance through Agira placed them within 20 miles of Catania and threatened that port from the west.

Thus the German defenders of that important city must fall back up the coast or be trapped on the north by the Americans, on the west by the Canadians and to the south by the British.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's weary but battle-wise Americans outsmarted and outflanked crack German troops recently reinforced with fresh reserves in their 12-mile overnight push to capture Nicosia.

In taking Agira, the Canadians attacked frontally and cracked the 15th German armored division after bitter fighting culminating in a bayonet charge against Nazi machine gun positions

Seizure of the two towns blasted the Germans' hopes that they could dig in along the base of the triangle and force the Allied invaders into a prolonged campaign of trench warfare.

Nicosia's fall also threatened the collapse of the northern Axis flank at Stefano Di Camastro on the Tyrrhenian sea.

HAIL DAMAGE AT NEW LONDON

Greenhouses Suffers Loss From Broken Glass.

NEW LONDON — A severe electrical storm accompanied by hail which struck New London late Thursday afternoon caused considerable property damage.

The residence of Manyard Blair was struck by lightning and the interior of the house damaged by the bolt which traveled down a chimney. There was no fire.

Damage from hail was estimated at $2,000 at the New London greenhouses, owned by George Arpasi. Glass was broken and plants outside the building were cut to shreds. Plants and buildings of the West End greenhouses owned by V. C. Heistsche, also were damaged.

COUNTY FACES MILK SHORTAGE

Producers' Chairman Cites Operating Cost as Reason For Problem.

ducers as a means of averting rationing of dairy products in the face of the threatened shortage.

J. I. Shafer of Akron, chairman of the five-state conference, said the group discussed the necessity of raising the producer income "not only to increase production but to maintain present production."

Though he said Richland county milk producers have not discussed a price increase, Mowry sees such a measure as a stimulus to milk production.

"An increase in the retail price of milk would help to balance the scales between the producing costs and the retail prices," Mowry said.

He indicated that the measure would probably come up for discussion at the association's board of directors meeting next Tuesday night.

Price increases, already approved by the O. P. A., went into effect today in Mahoning county and parts of Portage, Columbiana, and Trumbull counties raising the price from 14½ cents a quart to 15 cents. O. P. A. officials said today the increase had been allowed to prevent diversion of fluid milk from Youngstown and Warren areas to areas where higher prices are in effect.

Civilian Population Of U. S. Takes Sharp Drop.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The civilian population of the United States as of March 1, 1943, was 128,200,000 a drop of 3,100,000 from the total at the time of the 1940 census, a preliminary estimated by the bureau of census revealed today.

This big drop in non-uniformed citizenry, the bureau said, was due to the enormous shift of men to the armed services which far outstripped an increase in overall population brought about by a bumper wartime baby crop.

The civilian population of Ohio declined by 94,287 between April 1, 1940, and March 1, 1943, the bureau reported.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Karl S. Dixon announced today his resignation as secretary of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce and executive vice president George B. Chandler said it would be acted upon by directors at their meeting in mid September. Dixon did not state his future plans

Dixon has been Ohio C. of C. secretary five years and was assistant secretary for 11 preceding years.

The general assembly charged the commission to gather information regarding the state's postwar problems and to gather information from neighboring states and the Federal government about their plans for a return to peacetime civilian economy.

The act creating the commission, passed June 11 and approved by Bricker June 29, instructed the commission to investigate "how and to what extent, if any, the state of Ohio can help to restore the men and women now in the armed forces, or otherwise engaged in the war effort, to private industry," with "temporary provision, if any, which should be made by the state of Ohio for such persons."

The commission also was instructed to cooperate with local subdivisions in their preparation of postwar public works projects, and to consider creation of four new state parks, to cost not more than $400,000.

Mayor, Six Other Councilmen Absent After Bid To Session on Major Airport.

Greyhound Lines announced Mansfield would be one of the regular stopping points on the Cleveland-Cincinnati route of helicopter service when it is established in Ohio.

Planned as a feeder service for the major airlines which have already shown interest in the proposed major airport improvement project in Mansfield, the helicopter line would be operated over virtually the same routes followed by Greyhound bus lines.

The Grephound lines have filed an application with the Civil Aeronautics board at Washington for permission to set up the helicopter routes. The request is due for hearing in September.

Meanwhile, the council finance committee learned last night that the city probably can draw $60,000 from its general fund to buy 1,000 acres of land for the airport and then can issue bonds up to $60,000 within the 10-mill tax limitation for the rest of the cost.

Chairman Porch of the committee said council probably would be ready Tuesday night to authorize to service-safety director or another city representative to begin negotiations for the land needed for the airport expansion. Probable cost of the 1,000-acre tract has been set at $100,000.

its publication was banned in the newspapers.

Travelers from Rome, Milan, Genoa and other centers said the peace speech was the sole topic of conversation in homes, street and cafes.

Eisenhower's broadcast came while Italians paraded in Milan and other cities carrying banners inscribed with the slogans "We want peace," and "We want our sons back." These parades were staged in defiance of military warnings that troops had been ordered to fire on demonstrators.

The Italian populace, reports received in Bern said, is becoming increasingly worried over the failure of Badoglio to ask the Allies for an armistice and this freezing was by no means allayed by his refusal to allow publication of Eisenhower's broadcast and his apparent hesitation in answering it.

There was no doubt the first concrete terms offered by the Allies through Eisenhower were commanding the attention of the Badoglio regime, yet the fact government officials insisted that relations with the Germans would be carried on as before and that the war would be continued increased the feeling of frustration and uneasiness.

Italian political leaders, reports said, were beginning to doubt the wisdom of using the army as a police force, even though many high-ranking Fascists have been arrested.

In one of the few newspaper dispatches that have been allowed to come out of Rome under the new censorship regulations, the Swiss telegraphic agency today quoted government circles as saying the Roosevelt-Churchill speeches had not modified the Casablanca formula of unconditional surrender which Italy "could never accept without renouncing the most elemental sense of dignity."

(The Rome radio carried on this argument in a broadcast apparently directed at the Allies. The broadcast said the Allied peace terms were too drastic, and complained Great Britain was asking for a "Carthaginian peace"—a peace that would completely wipe out the defeated.)

(One "Carthaginian peace" to which the Rome radio referred was imposed on Carthage by the ancient Romans themselves in 146 B. C. after loosing their troops upon the conquered city to burn and plunder, they dedicated the site to the infernal gods and forbade all human habitation in the area.

(After 122 B. C., the Romans established a colony of their own on the site of Carthage. The last "Carthaginian peace" was imposed by the Byzantines, who decreed the city's destruction after conquering it in 698 A. D.)

Meanwhile, strikes continued in a number of important northern factories and there was sporadic fighting in sectors north of Rome. German troops moved into Fiume and Trieste in considerable numbers to maintain order and suppress incipient demonstrations for an independent Slav state. Italian forces in these sections were decreased as additional Nazi troops moved southward from Bologna, travelers arriving here from Rome reported.

New Italian-Nazi Clashes Reported

MADRID — (AP) — New outbreaks of fighting between German and Italian troops in northern Italy were reported today as advices direct from Rome told of a methodical Nazi military occupation of the Istrian peninsula and the whole Udine region from the gulf of Trieste to the Austrian border.

The Germans were said to be moving into the Udine region and Trieste from Klagenfurt, Austria, cutting to the southwest across the corner of Yugoslavia and the Julian Alps just as the Austrians drove through in the first World war.

Nazi columns also were reported moving westward from Klagenfurt through mountain passes leading across the Italian frontier.

It appeared the Germans might be bent on occupying all the territory north of the Po river which they consider necessary to their defense plans.

SPEEDERS LOSE RATIONS

COLUMBUS—(INS—Six Columbus motorists today prepared to put their cars in storage for a month as the result of action of War Ration Board No. 1, which revoked their gasoline rations for 30 days. All were charged with driving more than 45 miles an hour. Ten more are scheduled to appear for a hearing.

McGregor Finds Subsidies Cause Biggest Protest

majority of them don't want subsidies to bring about a food price roll back, he said.

"A lot of them are asking about how we can reduce taxes, too, and I'm telling them that fewer government bureaus and agencies can do that," he said.

Subsidies, labor legislation, and taxes are the topics that bring most of the questions in his interviews, he added.

He conferred this morning with a delegation of seven men representing the federal farm loan organization in the county.

He told them that farm organizations could do more for themselves by working in harmony rather than finding issues to quarrel about among themselves.

Congressman McGregor will lead a public discussion session at 8 p. m. today in the common pleas courtroom at the courthouse, answering questions directed to him from persons in the audience. The meeting will be sponsored by the Mansfield League of Women Voters.

The congressman said he would meet with Mansfield labor organizations Saturday or Saturday night.

His novel plan of conducting personal interviews with voters is attracting wide interest, McGregor said. A southern Ohio congressman and an Austin, Texas, newspaper called him yesterday to inquire about the success of his plan, he related.

He said he knew of no other Ohio congressman who is using the same means to reach a closer relationship with the people back home.

ATTEND PARLEY

Moose Lodge Sends Delegation To State Convention.

A big delegation from Mansfield Lodge No. 341 was among 3,000 delegates attending the annual state convention of the Loyal Order of Moose which opened today in Columbus.

Official delegates are Fred J. Roth, governor of Mansfield lodge, George Gump, junior governor, Joseph Heilman, a trustee, and Earl McFarland. These members were chosen as representatives by the lodge.

Sen. James J Davis, R., Penna., was scheduled to speak twice at the convention which will extend through Sunday. Davis is director general of the Moose and will arrive tomorrow.

Robert C. Knee of Dayton, state secretary of the Moose, disclosed that arrangements have been made with the treasury department for a $300,000 war bond purchase drive by Ohio members of the Moose. The treasury department assured the Moose that if members reach the $300,000 quota by the end of August, the war department will christen a Flying Fortress, "The Spirit of Ohio Moose."

the share-the-ride program seriously," Code said, "and because we know that many persons who obtained supplemental rations in lieu of alternate means of travel are using alternative means and consuming their gas for pleasure."

Coxe said the boards must be strict when renewing supplemental rations expiring at the end of August because tire quotas had steadily decreased since January, 1943.

OPA officials said boards were instructed to study closely:

Persons riding with others and yet having supplemental rations themselves;

Persons in areas where the OCD has set up a share-the-ride program not having a full complement of riders;

Persons, such as teachers, whose jobs do not extend into the summer, and yet use their supplemental mileage;

Professional persons, such as ministers or dentists, receiving supplemental rations beyond actual needs;

Motorists owning two cars who have been issued mileage without regard to the fact that 150 miles of the second car's ration must be used for occupational driving.

The OPA urged motorists whose supplemental rations expire at the end of August to re-apply now to avoid a delay in renewal.

TOLL SLASHED

Traffic Deaths Cut Nearly In Half, Report.

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Driver's cooperation plus mileage and speed regulations have cut the pre-war traffic death toll almost in half in the first six months of 1943, the national safety council reported today.

Traffic deaths through June this year were 10,030, compared with the 1941 total of 17,028 and last year's six month figure, 14,690.

CHAPTER XIII

When Fayne had finished fixing the lock, she looked up at him a trifle too eagerly, she was afraid, and said, "And now may I fix you a drink?"

"So you think yours is better than mine?"

They laughed together, their laughter mingling. She felt her face grow warm.

He said, "Of course I'll have a drink. I like this place. This is what a country house should look like."

"If you'd like to wait on the porch . . ."

"I won't wait at all. I'll help you. But why not take off your coat?"

She was glad she had cleaned the kitchen as he followed her to the rear of the house. And while she went about getting the glasses and bottles, it was not as though this was the first time he had stood beside her, helping her with a sure hand while her own were made unsteady by his presence. She hated the frailty of her hands, feeling that the silence that came briefly between them was caused by his knowing her nervousness. During that silence it was as if every nerve in her was beating separately and fiercely. If this be love, she thought . . .

But she said once more eagerly, "Would you like to see our view of the bay? You can see for miles around on a clear night like this."

"Would you?"

"I always want to. After living in the city all winter I can't seem to get enough of space and distance."

* * *

She did not know why he chuckled as they went out and walked to the cliff and sat in two chairs and placed their glasses on the arms of the chairs. Then she saw Fayne rest his head and visibly relax. For quite a long while they did not say anything and the only sounds between them were the sounds of the ice tinkling in the tall thin glasses and that of the gentle surf below.

"I thoroughly approve of your view, Meegan."

The tumult of her feelings frightened her. The thoughts she had of him and Clare and their five years of marriage would not be driven away by saner thoughts. For five years Clare had been his wife. She had slept and waked with him. Only Clare had the privilege of touching him and saying to him the things that were now in her, Meegan's, mind. Only Clare could put her hand in his and draw warmth and strength and desire from it. Only Clare . . . and Clare was with Toby and she, Meegan, was with Fayne. She was a partner, an unwilling but nevertheless a partner, to their deceit. And he knew. Of course he knew. He knew that Clare was with Toby tonight. Then why didn't he do something about it? If he loved Clare, why didn't he stop her or take her away? Didn't he know that Clare destroyed people? Did he want everyone on the island to be talking about her? But Clare had not destroyed him . . .

Perhaps of all people only he knew Clare. But what was there to know about Clare that her old friends did not know? She was beautiful and charming and vital. She could tell a story well and make a home comfortable and give an excellent party. She liked men and was in turn exceedingly attractive to them. But were there depths in her that only Fayne knew? Certainly he was not the kind of man to permit his wife unlimited license. His authoritative air, the fineness of his face and the working of his mind proved that. She suspected that he was a fiercely possessive man of those he loved, wanting possessiveness in return. A man's man, he was also a woman's man. He would not live well without love and a woman. The mouth that was at once sensitive and sensuous proved that. Did he then love her so much that he cared not what she did as long as she lived with him? She did not believe that either. He would care enormously about the reputation of his wife and the goodness of his name.

Presently he said, and there was a hint of sadness in his voice, "This is the pleasantest night I've had on your island, Meegan."

"Some of the pleasantest nights I've had on the island have been here."

He looked at her and smiled his slow smile. "You're too modest. I mean that the credit goes to you for making it so. But I really must be getting along . . . I imagine that Clare is home by now."

"I'm sorry you're going and thank you for helping me out."

They arose together.

Fayne said, "Don't make it sound as though I did something important."

She smiled. "Do you think you'll find the road back all right?"

"If I can't, I'll be ashamed to show my face on a hunt again."

"I wish you'd told me some of your experiences."

"Do you? I'm sorry. I always think that people who make you listen to their holiday experiences are top bores. And anyway you can't make Africa picturesque in language. Words don't do it justice . . . You're not, by any chance, afraid to stay alone until your mother or Toby comes, are you?"

"Oh, no. I've stayed here alone at night for years."

"Well then, good-night, Meegan."

"Good-night, Fayne."

He turned and walked over the lawn as though he knew his surroundings well. Gradually he became one with the darkness and she could hear his footsteps no more. It seemed to her that she could hear only the wild beating of her heart . . .

She was inside washing the glasses when Toby came in. He came in in a rush as though he were glad to be home and he looked more disheveled than she had even seen him. His white coat and dark trousers were wrinkled and a lock of his dark hair had dropped over his moist forehead. Immediately he straightened his tie and pushed back his hair. He took a deep breath of infinite relief.

"We made it," he said. "Thanks. I suppose it sounds crazy to you. You think we were just trying to pull something over on Fayne. But there's more to it than that. God, I've never been so scared in my life."

"What was there to it? Were you in an accident?"

"Not exactly. Look here, I can't tell you because I promised I wouldn't. I had to swear by all that's good and holy I wouldn't. It's all right now, I guess. I mean I didn't have anything to do with it and I'm not in any trouble with anybody. I meant to tell you. I thought you deserved an explanation. But after I talked to you I promised I wouldn't tell anyone. I'd . . . I'd sort of like to forget the whole thing, if you don't mind."

"You seem quite . . . well, subdued, Toby."

He shook his head. "You'd be, too. I think you're swell for doing what you did and I'm sorry I can't open up."

Meegan turned from the sink. "There's something strange going on in Clare's house. And you know what it is . . . Miss Willoughby isn't a secretary. I've never seen a secretary look as she does. If Clare had a secretary, she wouldn't look like Miss Willoughby."

He looked at her with a frown. "You're not so dumb, are you? But I said I wouldn't tell."

They had not heard the car stop or their mother walking to the house. She came in, blinking at the light and lifting her small white hat carefully from her waved hair. She smiled sweetly at them.

"I couldn't imagine why there was a light on in the kitchen."

Toby said, "We had a drink while we were waiting for you."

"Isn't that nice! Oh, dear I'm so tired. Will you lock up? Irene and I saw the most interesting picture. I don't want to forget it. I want to go to bed thinking about it."

Toby smiled. Then he said, "Is there anything to be done around here tomorrow?"

Elinor McLean laughed, "Why, darling, what's come over you? You mean you're going to be home tomorrow?"

"Let's not talk about it until then, dear. I don't want my present mood destroyed."

And Meegan, drying her hands, was thinking that whatever had happened tonight to Clare and Toby or between them he did not want to see her tomorrow. That was why he had looked glad to be home again.

When the house was dark and the doors locked, she heard Toby in the next room striking matches to successive cigarets and also the sound of his bare feet as he walked back and forth across the floor.

ACE AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHER WINS SPEEDY PROMOTIONS

(By International News Service)

MAXWELL FIELD, La. — Although his military record is one of notable achievements—including the rise from a sergeant to the rank of a lieut. col. in less than a year—the proudest event in the life of Lt. Col. Barron C. Powers, a native Alabamian, occurred March 17, 1943, somewhere on another continent.

He revealed this while on a 24-hour visit with his wife and friends.

The thing that stands out most in his memory is when, on orders of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, he was presented the Legion of Merit in the Officers degree. Col. Elliot Roosevelt personally bestowed the decoration on Col. Powers, while Lt. Gen. Carl Spatz looked on.

Powers, who has seen service in the air on four continents, is an ace aerial photographic expert, and action—with a capital A—is nothing new to him.

Among other "thrills" in the eventful life of Lieut. Col. Powers, who was born at Cassada, Ala., some nine miles from the Alabama state capital, is that of being dumped into the Arctic briny when a B-18 in which he was flying plunged into the ocean off Alaska in 1941.

He enlisted shortly after leaving school in 1919, and was assigned to the Montgomery Air Intermediate depot. He was transferred to Aberdeen, Md., shortly thereafter, and remained at that post for two years and two months. He was discharged in 1931 with the rating of a chauffeur First Class, which today roughly corresponds to the rating of Specialist First Class.

On Jan. 22, 1922, he re-enlisted —again in Montgomery—and was assigned to the photo section at Maxwell Field where he remained until July 22, 1931. He was made a staff sergeant almost immediately after his re-enlistment.

While attached to a photo section in Panama, he played a key part in aerial surveys of the Inter-American highway and other areas of that region.

OFF RECORD

NEW YORK —(INS)— A foreign language course on phonograph records has been instituted at the Broklyn Public library, Dr. Milton James Fergusen, chief librarian points out that this is the first time to his knowledge that such a course has ever been offered.

A Linguaphone course in Spanish, consisting of 30 lessons on 25 records inaugurated the new service.

WORKERS ON KANSAS FARMS DESERVE AWARD

They Complete Giant Wartime Contract, Bringing In Vast Wheat Crop.

(By Associated Press)

TOPEKA, Kan.—No medals or flags will be awarded for the job, but Kansas farmers, with some timely help from their city cousins, have completed a pretty big war contract—harvest of a vital 150,000,000-bushel wheat crop.

A few months ago the problem seemed almost insurmountable. The young farmers and farm workers had gone to war or defense jobs. There was no transient harvest labor in sight and there was almost no new farm machinery to replace worn out combines and tractors.

But today, the big crop has been harvested and most of it is now in storage—food for a warring nation.

That $200,000,000 crop, nearly a fourth of the country's total, lacked 5,000,000 bushels of equaling last year's but it's still a big crop.

Last year the big problem was where to put the grain. Elevators were jammed and farmers stored grain in empty houses, garages, the chicken house—anywhere there was space. This year, with much of the wheat moved out for war uses, the only storage problem was at shipping points where the box car shortage delayed movement of grain to terminal elevators.

The big job, of course, was overcoming the labor shortage. No one story can tell all the details but chiefly it was through application of the old-fashioned principle of utilizing what was available. Plus plenty of sweat.

Mostly it was the farmers themselves. They worked harder and longer, coupled machines together so one man could do the work of two, pooled machinery, traded labor and worked harder and longer.

But they had the help of hundreds of women — mostly farm women and girls—who manned tractors, trucks, combines, pitchforks and scoop shovels. School boys gave up summer swimming and fishing to help. And lots of townies stepped in to lend a hand during vacations and off hours.

For instance:

Rolla Hogg, farmer living east of Delphos, had no farm help. But his 15-year-old daughted, Gladys, drove the tractor, Hogg tended the combine and Mrs. Hogg hauled the wheat in the truck. Barbara, 14, took over the house work and Darrall, 11, did the milking and relieved his father of other chores.

Just before harvest started, Hubert Casper, living west of Junction City, broke a leg. But he was taken to the field each day and directed the work of a 17-year-old novice who did the combining. Mrs. Casper hauled the grain from the 150-acre field.

Members of Junction City civic clubs volunteered to devote their evenings to the harvest. In one evening, an American Legion crew shocked 50 acres of oats on the E. C. Erickson farm east of Junction City.

6 Seamen Survive Month at Sea In An Open Lifeboat

DURBAN, South Africa —(INS)—After 30 harrowing days in an open lifeboat in the Indian Ocean, six seamen have landed here with one of the strangest of this war's many stories.

Twenty-four men from a torpedoed Allied freighter started out in the lifeboat; 16 died of deliriums or jumped overboard before they were finally rescued.

Five days out they were sighted by a plane; the men became encouraged and finished most of the remaining food and water. But a storm blew up, heaving up forty foot waves around the small craft.

One wave capsized the lifeboat and the compass, instruments and remaining water were lost. The boat was not sighted again for 25 days.

Their last two matches were used to light a distress flare to signal another plane, which directed a freighter to their rescue.

SENT NORTH

NEW YORK—(INS)—A variation of the aphorism about carrying coals to Newcastle is provided in the announcement that a substantial quantity of quick-frozen vegetables will be sent by the Quartermaster Corps to troops in Alaska

Of the 71,000,000 pounds of quick frozen vegetables to be purchased for all the Armed services this year, upwards of 4,000,000 pounds will be sent to the Frozen North, the war department reports. The vegetables will include peas, snap beans, lima beans, cut corn and spinach.

Global Boondoggling Arraigned

EXCEPT for those who have been placed in a condition of hypnosis by the vagaries of such visionaries as Henry A. Wallace, the sound sense of an article by Henry J. Taylor in the August Reader's Digest will provide interesting food for thought about the part the United States will probably be required to take in post-war rehabilitation.

This article, entitled "Boondoggling on a Global Basis," consists of excerpts from Mr. Taylor's new book, "Men in Motion," which is considered one of the most important books of the wartime period.

"In our deep anxiety to be helpful to the world," Mr. Taylor says, "we are making promises and assuming superior attitudes which America and the world will deeply regret. We are speaking and writing glowingly about post-war matters concerning which we shall actually have little, if anything, to say.

"Once you leave our shores, the only voices you hear speak about a Better World Order are either German, Japanese or American. The American governmentalists in Washington are in strange company. . . . We cannot solve Europe's basic problems or 'make the world free.' The destiny of Europeans is within themselves, and so is the destiny of their world-wide colonial system."

An illuminating example of American boondoggling is presented by recital of an incident in which pay of Eskimo fishermen and trappers in Labrador was increased from $8 or $10 a week to $80 a week and then to $120—with the result that Eskimos stopped work because they had more money than they knew what to do with. The supply of furs decreased and there was a famine of fish.

"For a country whose own cities are in the most deplorable condition in their history, with vastly rich areas like Boston, Detroit and Philadelphia facing financial crises in spite of maximum employment and maximum taxes, our government planners go far afield in trying to solve the colonial problems of the world," Mr. Taylor sensibly concludes.

How One Boy's First Job Turned Out

WHILE it may not be to his liking to have such personal reference made to the start of his forty-eight years of service with the bank in which he started work as a collector on August 1, 1895, it seems that today's boys and young men are entitled to learn how a successful career was built on a small beginning by Robert S. Gibson, whose resignation as cashier of the Mansfield Savings Trust National Bank becomes effective tomorrow.

Money did not come easily to "Bob" Gibson during his early boyhood and his leisure time was occupied in mowing lawns and doing other odd jobs for the small pay common to those days. Before completing high school it became necessary to "look for a job" and his record for industry and dependability had been such as to open the way to employment as a bank collector, which then included sweeping floors, washing windows, and doing other janitorial work—all for $12.50 a month, which was made to sound larger by being called "$150.00 a year."

But this was considerable, back in 1895—possibly equal to $10 a week nowadays in positions which offer opportunity to learn and advance—and "Bob" was able to contribute half of his early earnings to the family upkeep and also to start a savings account for himself.

As young Gibson showed ability to grasp the intricacies of the banking business he followed the customary course of advancement to bookkeeper, then to teller and finally—15 years ago—to the position of cashier, with increasing compensation commensurate with greater responsibilities. Always, however, whether earnings were small or relatively large, the established habit of thrift carried through year after year, with some part of income regularly going into savings.

With stamp-collecting as a long-time hobby, enjoying the cultivation of flowers and getting much pleasure from travel, the reward of Mr. Gibson's almost half century of industry, thrift and devotion to duty comes in the form of self-earned financial security and the "leisure time" that will most likely be filled by activities which will hereafter be unhampered by routine employment.

However much it may be deserved, "Bob" Gibson would be last to consider himself a subject for complimentary reference, so this mention is justified on no other basis than that it may point the way toward successful living for some other Mansfield boy who may mistakenly believe that immediate large earnings and "a good time" are preferable to a job that starts with comparatively small pay but which offers opportunity for advancement in some line of interesting and necessary work.

Great Seaport Wrecked From Air

THE IMMENSITY of modern air power shows itself in in such terrific assaults as British and American bombers and Flying Fortresses have been delivering against Hamburg. That great seaport has now been battered to destruction. There will soon be so little left of it that, if it is ever rebuilt, the builders will have to remove the ruins and start all over again.

And that is just one incident in a three-dimensional war, which proceeds so tremendously now that almost every week brings some new weapon or process of destruction. It begins to look as if Germany, which had felt itself secure from the destructive war it has been waging against civilization, is at last coming to such retribution as has never been visited upon a warring nation in modern times.

Order Winter's Coal Early

EXCEPT for an occasional mention, not much is likely to be said this summer about ordering next winter's coal now and having it delivered as soon as possible.

This is due to the fact that there are enough forehanded people to keep dealers busy through the summer, to the extent of available supplies and delivery service, so it will probably be up to coal users to take the initiative in making sure that they get the fuel needed for next winter.

Shortage of manpower and trucks has already had a noticeable effect on coal deliveries in many cities and a wise course is to place an order at once for coal requirements for the winter.

Variety of Views on World Aid

By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—It is a truism in politics that no one can be sure what the people will be thinking about any given issue one year from any given Tuesday. This is brought freshly to mind by the activities of a considerable group of Republicans anxious for their party to avoid the label "Isolationist." Also by the speeches of Wendell L. Willkie and Henry A. Wallace. And by the actions and words of most government officials.

Most politicians of both parties seem to be very sure at the moment that the American people, or at least a majority of them, will be willing to make any sacrifice necessary to attain the "Four Freedoms" for the world after the war.

They may be right—but there is NO CERTAINTY about it.

The same thing was true about the League of Nations in 1918. One of the G.O.P. elder statesmen, Elihu Root, was privately very skeptical about what would happen to the League. But he was very sure, in his own mind, that the American people would be thinking about it in 1920—election day. He remarked to Mrs. Whitelaw Reid in urging that the New York Tribune, stalwart Republican organ of the day, support the League: "No harm that could come from the League would be as bad for the United States as four more years of the Democratic party."

Her son, Ogden Reid, then publisher of the Tribune and now of the Herald Tribune, was unconvinced. Despite all sorts of pressure he supported the Lodge reservations. It turned out, in the 1920 election, that the group typified by Elihu Root and George Wharton Pepper, and even the Charles L. McNary who is now Republican leader of the senate, while they might have been right as rain in 1918, were just as wrong then about what the American people would think in November of 1920.

WHAT brings about this wondering as to whether history may not repeat itself in another swing of public sentiment is a book just published by Henry J. Taylor, "Men in Motion." Despite the reputation of Taylor as a remarkable accurate foreign observer, this book alone might not produce much repercussion. After all it is a serious book, and few serious books have much effect on public opinion.

But excerpts from this book have just been printed in Readers' Digest, which happens to have a circulation of more than four million. Furthermore, at the bottom of these excerpts, with which Digest leads its August issue, is an invitation for readers to buy reprints of the article, to mail to their friends, one hundred for a dollar!

"We will be asked," says Mr. Taylor, "to provide 'freedom from want' to at least a billion people, most of them in primitive surroundings and 400,000,000 of them in Europe. One hundred and thirty million Americans are in no position to do this. The promise of the United States is utterly fantastic."

And he says: "Our citizens cannot give to the world (1) freedom of speech and expression, (2) freedom of every person to worship God in his own way, (3) freedom from want, and (4) freedom from fear. The whole conception of giving or infusing the Four Freedoms universally is preposterous. It is not idealism. It is sheer political buncombe, and is so recognized abroad."

Mr. Taylor gets really tough in describing what U. S. government paid theorists have done abroad, their stupidity in not permitting coffee shipments when there were empty ships returning, their conspiring against Ambassador Steinhardt, etc.

The point of all this is, one wonders, after reading Mr. Taylor if a few good orators or interview givers could not upset the apple-cart of both the administration and the Willkie group of Republicans in the 15 months before election?

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, July 30, 1923.

Word from San Francisco was that President Harding was showing improvement after sudden attack of illness.

Wilbur F. Mattern and family left on motor and camping trip through the west.

James J. Aungst, 72, died at his home, 51 South Diamond street.

Newly instituted lodge of Italy in America opened quarters in Bowers building.

Miss Grace Eyerly resumed duties at Maxwell store after month's trip through the west.

Annual "blue ribbon show" of children's pets was held at Bowman school playgrounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Swain moved from Elmwood drive into newly built home on Hoffman avenue.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The first (and last) automobile race from the United States to Europe was won 40 years ago today. Three of six cars that had left New York on Feb. 12 in a contest for a prize offered by a Paris newspaper, managed to reach the finish line in Paris, but the first and the last were five weeks apart.

Cast out first the beam out of thine own eye, and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote from thy brother's eye.—Matt. 7:5.

Dave Boone Says:

IT'S PRETTY HARD to keep a straight face when you read J. Caesar Petrillo's announcement that in response to a personal plea from the president that the people of America be permitted to enjoy good music like the people of other countries, Mr. Petrillo has arranged to put an orchestra on tour.

* * *

In no other country on earth is it easier for the people, rich, poor or medium, city dweller or country hermit, to get good music from the best artists. Yet Mr. Petrillo asks the public to swallow the stuff about needing a traveling orchestra so Americans can have the same opportunity Europeans have. Oh boy.

"The president pointed out to me that in many countries concert orchestras are sent from city to city so that the people not in a financial position to travel to the big cities to hear the largest orchestras can hear the finest music free of charge, and I promised I would be happy to take the matter up," says J. Caesar. I'll bet the president had to laugh at that one.

* * *

Well, it's going to be a great privilege to the great mass of American men, women and children to be able to hear good music and shake off that terrible feeling of being deprived of the great advantages peoples have everywhere except in America. They've heard a lot of rumors about music but they don't know what it is like. And it's just too bad.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Roosevelt Aids Vatican In Hope Of Rapprochement With Russia

WASHINGTON—Just before he left the United States for the war zone, Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York, the president's closest link with the Vatican, told friends of weekly conversations he had had with Pope Pius XII in which His Holiness expressed hope for an early understanding between the Vatican and Soviet Russia.

Archbishop Spellman was secretary to the Pope when, as Cardinal Pacelli, the Pope was Vatican secretary of state, and he remains one of Pius XII's most trusted confidants.

All during the war and until the New York archbishop left the United States, the two conferred regularly by trans-Atlantic phone at 1 p. m. on Wednesday.

These phone calls, never before publicized, are one of the anomalies of the war. Though this meant a telephonic hookup of two enemy countries, connections were made promptly and the conversations never censored or garbled—at least from our side.

When the history of this war is written, it may show that the trans-Atlantic calls between the Pope and his closest adviser in the United States played an important part in paving the way for a rapprochement between the Vatican and Russia. Pius XII dropped many tell-tale hints in these talks about discord in Italy, which were relayed to the president.

Pope Against Dictators.

SPEAKING from an enemy country, the Pope could not of course unburden himself of his innermost feelings toward the Axis, but Archbishop Spellman told friends that he manifested his contempt for Hitler and Mussolini in subtle ways. He was extremely depressed about the state of affairs in Europe and once confessed to his former secretary:

"I'm very lonesome and worried. I wish you could come over and visit me because I need your advice very much."

It was shortly after this that Archbishop Spellman left to visit the Pope and to take up his new duties as "military vicar" of Catholic chaplains of foreign war fronts. In the light of the foregoing background, his itinerary is interesting. After flying to Lisbon and thence to Madrid, a Spanish plane carried him to Milan, Italy, from where he was driven to the Vatican with an escort of Italian soldiers.

In several of his trans-Atlantic talks with Archbishop Spellman, Pius XII mentioned Russia and expressed hope that some way could be found to bring about a religious accord which would endure in post-war years. The Pope made it clear that he looked to President Roosevelt to blaze the trail.

When this was made known to Roosevelt shortly before Archbishop Spellman's departure, the president pledged his whole-hearted assistance. He urged the church leader to act as his personal intermediary with the Vatican and make a full report to him on his return to the United States.

Present plans call for direct negotiations by the U. S. ambassador in Moscow, with the possibility that the Pope may send a personal envoy to talk things over with Premier Stalin.

Note: It was natural for the Pope to turn to President Roosevent to aid in effecting a concordat with Russia, for Pius XII stayed with the Roosevelts at Hyde Park during his last visit in the United States as Papal secretary of state.

Hiram Johnson Recovers.

DOCTORS at the Naval hospital have reported to Roosevelt's personal physician, Admiral Ross McIntyre, that there was one thing entirely beyond their power which turned the tide in the recent illness of Senator Hiram Johnson of California.

Senator Johnson, stricken with pneumonia last winter at the age of 77, was not expected to live. Newspaper reports speculated that in case of his death, Republican Gov. Warren of California would appoint Herbert Hoover to Johnson's seat.

After about the second day of Johnson's illness he was in an oxygen tent. His condition not good when Mrs. Johnson came to see him. Opening the door of the oxygen tent, she told her husband:

"Hiram, there is one thing I think I ought to tell you. The newspapers are saying that in case anything happens to you, Herbert Hoover will take your place in the senate."

The explosion from inside the oxygen tent was terrific.

"Get this—thing off of me!" fumed the senator from California. "There's nothing wrong with me. I'm feeling better already."

Naval doctors say that from that point Senator Johnson began to improve rapidly.

Farm Tools.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has on his desk a report which may mean plenty of trouble for the big farm machinery companies.

The report states that in the middle west, some of the farm implement companies not only have been spreading poison against him, but also have been withholding machinery parts in order to force the government into resuming the manufacture of implements.

The problem with most farmers is to repair their machinery. While they would like to be able to buy new equipment, they are patriotic enough to scrape along with what they have—provided they can buy spare parts.

But these spare parts, according to information reported to the White House, have been made purposely scarce. Big farm implement people are accused by White House advisers of keeping repair parts off the market in order to force the War Production Board to relent on its order against the wholesale manufacture of implements.

If this is correct, the strategy has been successful. For the WPB ban has now been lifted.

Note: White House advisers also have reported that most farmers are working heart and soul for the war and are not basically anti-Roosevelt. However, the president was told that they are being aroused by the big farm lobbies and by agents of farm machinery companies.

Mussolini-Go-Round.

MUSSOLINI and his son-in-law Count Ciano are reported to have about $15,000,000 cached in neutral Argentina. . . . Ciano and daughter Edda are safely ensconced inside Vatican City where Ciano is ambassador and enjoys diplomatic immunity. There is no way he can be extracted unless the Pope chooses to expel him. It is a safe bet Ciano will not risk coming out on his own for a long, long time. . . . While the Italian nation was strictly rationed, Count and Countess Ciano added to their popularity in Rome by throwing elaborate parties. Caviar, lobster and champagne featured the menu. . . . When Augusto Rosso, former Italian ambassador in Washington, was transferred from Russia to be Italian ambassador to Turkey, the Nazis stopped his appointment. They said he was too pro-American. Rosso has an American wife, the former Mrs. Francis Bunker of Denver.

Accuracy In Reaching "Right Spot" Shows Careful Preparation for Invasion.

WITH THE U. S. NAVY IN THE MEDITERRANEAN—(By Wireless—Delayed)—In invasion parlance the day you strike a new country is called D-day and the time you hit the beach is H-hour. In the invasion contingent for which I am a very biased rooter H-hour was set for 2:45 a. m., July 10.

This was when the first mass assault on the beach was to begin. Actually the paratroopers and Rangers were there several hours before. The other two large American forces which travelled from North Africa in separate units hit the beaches far down to our right about the same time. You could tell when they landed by the shooting during the first hour or so of the assault.

It seemed to me out on our ship that all hell was breaking loose ashore but now that I look back upon it from a firmer foundation, actually knowing what happened, it doesn't seem so very dramatic.

As I've said before most of our special section was fairly easy to take and our naval guns didn't send any fireworks ashore until after daylight. The assault troops did all the preliminary work with rifles, grenades and machine guns. Out on ship we could hear the bop, bop, bop of the machine guns, first short bursts, then long ones.

I don't know whether I heard any Italian ones or not. In Tunisia you could always tell the German machine guns because they fired so much faster than ours but that night all the shooting seemed to be of one tempo, one quality.

NOW AND THEN we could see a red tracer bullet arcing through the darkness and I remember one that must have ricocheted from a rock for suddenly it turned and went straight up into the sky a long way. Now and then there was the quick flash of a hand grenade.

There was no aerial combat during the night and only a few flares shot up from the beach. To be factual, our portion of the night assault on Sicily was far less spectacular than the practice landings I'd seen our troops do back in Algeria.

A more spectacular show was in the sector to our right, some 12 or 15 miles down the beach. There the First Infantry division was having stiff opposition and their naval escort stood off miles from shore and threw steel at the enemy artillery in the hills.

It was the first time I'd ever seen tracer shells used at night in big guns and it was fascinating.

From where we sat it was like watching a tennis game played with red balls except all the balls went in one direction. You would see a golden flash way off in the darkness. Out of the flash would go shooting a tiny red dot. That was the big shell. It covered the first quarter of the total distance almost instantly. Then it would uncannily begin a much slower speed as though it had put on a brake.

There didn't seem to be any tapering down between its high and low speeds. It went from high to low instantly. You'd think it would start arcing downward in its slower speed but instead it amazingly just kept on in an almost flat trajectory as though it were on wheels being propelled along a level road. Finally after a flight so long you stood unbelieving that a thing could still be in the air it would disappear in a little flash as it hit something on the shore. Long afterwards you'd hear the heavy explosions come rolling across the water.

OUR PORTION of the American assault went best of all. The First Division on our right had some bitter opposition and the 45th on beyond them had some rough seas and bad beaches. But with us everything was just about perfect.

Our navy can't be given too much credit for putting the troops ashore the way they did.

You can't realize what a nearly impossible task it is to arrive in the dead of night at exactly the right spot with your convoy, feel your way in through the darkness, pick out the very pinpoint of an utterly strange shoreline which you've been told long beforehand to hit, then put your boat safely ashore right there. In our sector every boat hit every beach just right.

They tell me it is the first time in history that it has ever been accomplished. The finest tribute to the navy's marksmanship came from one soldier who later told this to Maj. Gen. Truscott, his division commander:

"Sir, I took my little black dog with me in my arms and I sure was scared standing in that assault boat. Finally we hit the beach and as we piled out into the water we were worse scared than ever. Then we waded ashore and looked around and there ahead of me was a white house just where you said it would be and after that I wasn't scared."

A Farmer's Diary — By CALVIN A. BYERS

Wasteful Fire

IT WAS a splendid field of mammoth clover. Often in spring, I had admired its fresh greenness and the line of even tops along the rough hillside. By mid-June numerous red heads appeared and then the full length of the rugged slope was one vast stretch of pinkish bloom. At dewy morning eerie lines of color reflected delicately on the dark fringe of bluegrass at the border; at sunset the amber afterglow bathed the hill in wavering lines of gold and purple until the silent dusk moved upward from the soil.

I heard the cricket's chirp within the cool sod and later observed the pale green wings of the katydid move leisurely upon the blooming tops. An agile grasshopper bounded great distances with the power of his springlike legs.

Within a cuplike opening of the heavy stalks was a quail's hooded house. I was surprised, at so late a date, to see 14 white eggs. Through the tangled maze, rich in juicy insects, a mother pheasant led her brood. It was a feeding ground for nectar-loving bees, a protective shelter for wild life—a strange delight to look upon.

ONE MORNING, after a soaking rain, the farmer tried to plow this clover patch. The tangle choked his plow. He set the jointer deeper, but that only increased his troubles. Disgusted, he left the field, and drove his team to the barn. Next morning I heard him mowing, and believed he was trying for a crop of hay.

Not so. He waited until the thick mat had dried, then stirred it with the tedder. One hot dry afternoon, from across another hill, I saw great billowing clouds of smoke arise. The odor of burning stubble came on the wind. I was sorry, for in those long white clouds of rising smoke was clearly written a message of loss and waste.

Three days later, driving by, I saw that his plowshare cut the parching soil with ease. In September he planted wheat. That was two years ago. Now that same slope is gullied abandoned land. That same farmer, in poverty, reaps scanty crops from his other fields.

Hundreds of acres lie unused about our section of country—with slippery yellow poverty grass growing between ever-deepening gullies. Lack of constructive planning costs many times more than taxes and repairs combined. Successful farmers are plowing down thick clover, soybeans, and tall rye—are stripping their slopes with erosion-checking crops—are hauling out manure.

PRE-NUPTIAL EVENT FETES MISS ARNETT

Prospective Bridegroom's Mother and Sister Give Miscellaneous Shower for Bride-Elect; Guests Make Bride's Book.

MISS MARY ARNETT, the bride-elect of Sgt. Robert Hawley, was entertained Thursday night at another in the series of pre-nuptial parties in her honor at the home of the prospective bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Colison Holmes, Amoy-Pavonia road. Associate hostess was Mrs. Ethel Hawley, mother of Sgt. Hawley.

During the evening guests made a bride's book.

Gifts were presented to the honoree when she received a special delivery letter from Sgt. Hawley telling his bride-to-be where she would find the gifts, which were hidden about the home. The gift of the hostesses was a satin comforter.

When luncheon was served, pastel appointments were used. The table was centered with a miniature pool with lighted candle lilies floating about. Tall yellow candles on either side of the pool completed the table decorations.

Miss Arnett, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Arnett, 61 West Arch street, and Sgt. Hawley will wed Aug. 7 in the First Lutheran church at 2:30 p. m. The ceremony will be open.

The next party scheduled for Miss Arnett will be be given at the home of Mrs. Clarence Marks, Helen avenue, Aug. 2. Associate hostess will be Mrs. Robert Taylor.

Nuptial Vows Read Tuesday In Fostoria

Another wedding which took place while the bridegroom was home on furlough from the army air corps was that of Cpl. Robert F. Smith, former Mansfielder, and Miss Maxine McWilliams of Lexington.

The nuptials were read Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the Presbyterian manse at Fostoria. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith of Fostoria, also former residents of this city.

For her wedding, the bride chose a turf tan jersey ensemble with army russet accessories and a small veiled matching hat. Her shoulder corsage was white rose buds.

Witnessing the exchange of nuptial vows were the bridegroom's parents. Mrs. Smith wore a black net gown with white accessories and a shoulder corsage of red rose buds.

Mrs. Smith will continue to make her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred McWilliams, for the present. She is a graduate of Johnsville high school. Cpl. Smith graduated from Mansfield Senior high school. He is now stationed in the technical school squadron at Chanute Field, Ill.

FALL DRESSES.

However, the first fall collection of dresses shows no dearth of attractive colors. Black and brown are well represented, with gold, olive green, russet, and medium red used quite frequently.

Old Pictures Inspire New Hair Styles

The decided way in which art has always influenced fashions in hair-dressing was graphically shown in a recent Fashion in Headdress exhibit held in New York City. At this exhibit a group of famous paintings dating from 1450 to 1943 were exhibited. Famous socialites, whose hair had been arranged in coiffures suggested by the portraits of various periods posed next to the pictures which had inspired their hair-dos and hats. Thus an 18th century portrait by Drouais inspired a high-curled modern arrangement, a Fragonard model with softly curled hair suggested a lovely combination of soft curls and waves for a modern beauty.

While all of the modern coiffures shown were designed specially for the exhibition, their variety is typical of our current hairdressing styles, and they show how today's coiffures draw their inspiration from many historical periods. The difference, however, between the pictured ladies and today's women, is that many years ago only the fortunate few with naturally lovely hair could have such becoming coiffures. Today any woman can find a coiffure that is becoming and smart, can have hair that is softly waved or that is a mass of becoming curls, no matter what the type of hair with which she was born.

Health Club Members Told Of Basic Food

Meals based on the government-recommended "Basic 7" food groups help build healthy bodies in much the same way that the various parts of a house serve to make it a sturdy dwelling, Health for Victory members at the Westinghouse plant were told yesterday.

Miss Charlotte Ferris, assistant director of the Westinghouse Home Economics Institute, said each of these seven food groups is interdependent upon the other. "That means that we can't merely select one group and concentrate our eating on the foods in that group, but instead we must eat some food from each of the seven groups every day for full, rounded diets," the speaker explained.

The seven basic food groups are (1) green and yellow vegetables, (2) oranges, tomatoes and grapefruit, (3) potatoes and other vegetables, and fruits, (4) milk and milk products, (5) meat, poultry, fish or eggs, (6) bread, flour and cereals, (7) butter and fortified margarine.

"Like a contractor using good materials to build a house, we must eat the right foods—and all of them—to build and maintain healthy bodies," the home economist pointed out. "For a strong foundation, we should get plenty of milk and milk products—fluid, evaporated, dried milk or cheese—because they supply us with calcium, the mineral so vital to good teeth and strong bones."

The speaker next discussed the food group that includes bread, flour and cereals, comparing them to weather boards used in constructing a house. "These foods give us the energy to perform our daily work with strength left over. In addition to energy, these foods give us an additional supply of protein, so they can be called 'double-header' foods."

Still building an imaginary food house, the speaker selected for roofing material potatoes and other vegetables and fruits—raw, dried, cooked, frozen or canned. She pointed out that these foods could be compared with a roof because they provide protective vitamins and minerals which are essential for good bones, blood, circulation and other body functions.

For "windows" in a person's body, Miss Ferris recommended the food group that includes green and yellow vegetables. "These are teeming with priceless vitamin A, which among other things gives us good vision and keen eyesight," the Health for Victory members were told.

The foods that make up another of the "Basic 7" food groups are oranges, tomatoes and grapefruit, which the home economist compared to the doors of a house. Rich in vitamin C, these foods guard bones, teeth and gums against disease.

For a "heating plant," Miss Ferris said butter and fortified margarine provide body heat and energy required to do a hard day's work without feeling tired.

MISS DONNA MAE PORTER, Glendale boulevard, was hostess last evening at another party honoring Miss Barbara Schuttera, who will become the bride of Sgt. Herman Deter in an open church ceremony Aug. 8 at the St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

There was mischief in Dicky's voice, and I knew that though he was alive to the great importance of our mission, he was not averse to the opportunities it gave him.

Determined to prove that I had mastered my role, I gave not the slightest hint of recognition in my eyes or voice. Instead, hurrying over to him in what I fondly hoped was an imitation of Annie's gait, I inquired meekly: "Yes, sir?"

"I want you to come in here and look at this desk," he said loudly. "The ink well is dry, and the—"

"I don't see how that can be, sir," I protested politely, "for I filled it only yesterday. But maybe the man who was here did a lot of writing. He just checked out this morning."

Talks Too Much.

"You talk too much," he said severely. "Remember, in a hotel the customer is always right. Now get busy and trot across the room. I want to see what success the old girl had in grilling you."

"That will have to wait," I said, sitting down in the nearest chair.

Dicky stared at me in pretended astonishment.

"You forget yourself, my good woman!" he said. "You musn't take liberties. You're neither young nor pretty enough," he added with an elaborate leer.

"'We are not amused'," I quoted frigidly, then hurriedly explained.

"Ruth Herrick has left directions she is not to be disturbed until ten-thirty," I said, "unless she gets a telephone call from a certain number. And what number do you think she gave?"

"The White House?" Dicky inquired, with a slow grin.

A Startling Announcement.

"Milner's privately listed telephone at the Lansfield!" I announced, and was gratified to see the grin vanish as he sprang to his feet.

"The devil you say!" he exclaimed. "What do you suppose that means?"

"I don't know," I replied, "but I'm going to find out."

"How?" he queried, looking intently at me, and I recounted the precautions I had taken to have the telephone call switched so that I could listen in on the conversation.

"You'll be on the wire before she is?" he inquired.

"Yes."

"Good! Otherwise, she'd be sure to know somebody was listening. But remember, you musn't cough or sneeze, or gasp, no matter what surprising thing you hear."

"I don't expect to breathe," I told him, and he laughed. Then his faced sobered.

"Why do you suppose she's arranged for a call from Milner?" he asked.

"I don't think she's arranged to have him call her as a matter of routine," I said slowly. "Otherwise she'd have a definite time for the call."

Dicky Still Gibes.

"What then, oh oracle?" he gibed, though his voice was tense with uneasiness.

"It looks to me," I said, "as though she feared some emergency, and had arranged to have him telephone if something happened that would affect her errand. Otherwise she was to be undisturbed."

"No doubt that's the answer," he agreed. "The call's coming in here?"

"Yes; the housekeeper arranged to have it transferred here."

"Then I'll leave the bathroom door wide open and dash in there as soon as the phone rings," he said. "I'll keep the door slightly ajar, but I'll run no risk of even breathing loudly while you're listening."

"That might be a good idea," I said, "and now, if you like, suppose you go on with my drill."

"I'll do that little thing," he said, and for the next few minutes he put me through my paces even more severely than the housekeeper had done. When he had finished, he made me an elaborate salaam."

Performance Pleases Dicky.

"My hat's on the closet shelf, but if you want it, I'll get it down and present it to you on a silver salver. Lady, you're sure good! Ruth Hayes will never suspect you provided you keep your lamps partly dimmed. Hello! — there goes the telephone!"

He dashed for the bathroom, and I took down the receiver.

"1718?" the operator's voice inquired, and at my assent added: "I'm switching this call on now. Please do not make any noise."

Shrimp and Mushroom Dish In Menu

By BETSY NEWMAN.

Another good dinner dish is Shrimp, Egg and Mushrooms. You can serve four or five people with on can shrimp, two eggs and one-half pound mushrooms, so it is not an expensive dish either.

Today's Menu.

Shrimp, Egg and Mushrooms
Riced Potatoes or Boiled Rice
Asparagus Watercress Salad
Jellied Grapefruit Dessert
Tea

Shrimp, Egg and Mushrooms

1 can shrimp (1 c.)
2 hard-cooked eggs
Bread crumbs
½ lb. mushrooms, sliced
1½ cup cream sauce
Grated cheese

Clean shrimp, hard cook eggs and slice; slice mushrooms and saute in 2 tablespoons margarine. Combine ingredients in greased baking dish. Prepare cream sauce, using 2 tablespoons margarine or poultry fat, 3 tablespoons flour and 1½ cups milk. Pour into dish, sprinkle bread or cereal crumbs and grated cheese over top and bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) until heated through and nicely browned, about 30 minutes. Serve 4 or 5.

Jellied Grapefruit Dessert.

2 grapefruit sections, free from membrane, diced
1½ cup warm water
½ cup sugar
1 pkg. lime or raspberry gelatin
Dash of salt

Combine grapefruit and sugar (you may find that ¼ cup sugar is enough) and let stand 10 minutes. Dissolve gelatin in warm water, add salt, pour over grapefruit. Chill, stirring occasionally until slightly thickened. Turn into sherbet glasses. Serves 8.

"The Authority on Authorities"

MUCH IS OUT OF SIGHT

Factors which prove more important than everything else put together are hidden from your view on lots of deals, and would never be guessed by the soundest minds. Some sizable percentage of all made contracts could be beaten only if the defenders went counter to all principles of common sense, or if they were clairvoyant and could read exactly the holdings of their opponents. But the player who followed the most promising course at such a time must not upbraid himself if it proves that some crazy method would have produced better results.

What would you call the worst suit of all to lead against that bidding, if you could not see the hand of the declarer or dummy, or of your partner? A diamond, of course. You would expect that to give the declarer a head start in setting up a couple of small cards in dummy's long suit. The black suit bid also by the opponents were out of the question, and so South picked the 9 of the unbid hearts, pretty sure his partner had a good holding there.

East got the first trick with the Q and finessed a club to North's K. Now, no matter what the defenders did, they could get nothing else but the diamond A and K. Four tricks were taken in clubs, four in spades and two in hearts, for an extra trick.

Just see what would have happened if, as pointed out in the post-mortem, South had made the worst lead in his hand, a small diamond. Regardless of when West took a trick with his diamond Q, it would have to be on the first or second round, or else the defenders would run the whole suit. After that clubs would have to be finessed, whereupon North would win and the rest of the diamonds would be scored, beating the contract.

Tomorrow's Problem.

What is the right way for East to play this hand at 3-No Trumps after North uses the heart A on the first trick and returns the 4?

CLAIMS WOMEN WILL WANT TO STAY ON JOBS

Ohioan Doubts They'll Be Willing To Quit Industry After the War.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — The young women of today might well awaken to the transition now in progress for the woman of tomorrow and the status of American family life.

Mrs. Virginia Myers, who has traveled through the country for the army ordnance department and is with the Ohio development and publicity commission, commented:

"Women went into business in the last war and stayed. They have gone into industry on a tremendous scale in this war and they will not get out."

She has talked with hundreds of employers who have seen the personnel of their plants change almost overnight from that of the reputed stronger sex to the slack-clad female

"I have as yet to talk to the first employer who has made the change who says women are not as satisfactory, if not more satisfactory, than men," she declared.

American women have been encouraged through training to enter what used to be considered men's exclusive field. After spending from 6 months to 4 years in accomplishing a skill, they are not going to return to the accepted pattern of baking biscuits and darning socks, she asserted

"The WACS, the WAVES the SPARS and any other women's military organizations will not disband after the war, she declared. "They are here permanently. They have found a place for themselves and they will retain it."

There will be however, she said, a certain percentage who will want to return to civilian life. Those who come out of uniform will create another industrial group which labor may draw on, for during their service they have been trained.

What's to become of American home life? There will be day nurseries, and summer camps where children will be sent while their mother is working

"After all" said Mrs Myers "these are things that the more privileged classes have strived to obtain for their children. Why shouldn't others want to send their children to nursery schools where they have the benefits of a dietician a teacher, and supervised play?

"There is a great deal of an alarmist feeling about what the modern woman is coming to. Ours is an expanding and adjusting economy which will not disrupt the industrial movement"

"There will simply be less bridge less golf and less entertaining" she remarked.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Two more new books for older girls will be released Saturday at Mansfield Public Library One is the story of an empty house and children who played in it. The other follows the chief character in a puppet show.

THE HOUSE BETWEEN, by Ethel Parton—Cassy wanted to enter the Dollard house next-door, but she was surprised when the window opened. She was surprised too that having gone into the house and had secret meetings there with her friends she could now be accused of house-breaking There are many other adventures in this story of long ago.

HERODIA, THE LOVELY PUPPET, by Katherine Milhous — Herodia danced in Professor Blair's puppet show which traveled through Pennsylvania hills in a beautifully decorated wagon. One day Joek found Herodia peeling potatoes and was the first to know she was a real little girl pretending to be a puppet How long do you suppose Herodia and Professor Blair were able to keep their secret? They had many adventures as they tried not to let people know that the most beautiful puppet in the show was real and growing.

'SHINING SEA' NEW NOVEL ON LIBRARY LIST

Book Unfolds Story of Girl Who Flees From Loveless Marriage In Sweden.

One of the new books to be released Saturday at the Mansfield public library is the winner of the prize for the best Swedish novel of 1941 and has been translated into English by Barrows Mussey.

THE SHINING SEA by Kjerstin Gorranson-Ljungman is a beautifully told tale of simple life and passion—the story of a fisher girl of the east coast of Sweden who flees from an arranged and loveless marriage to become the bride of a solitary fisherman on a remote offshore island near the Aland Islands in the Gulf of Bothnia Then war comes transforming their little seagirt world to a small world conflict—bringing to their cottage the myriad problems that confront us all

THE SQUAD GOES OUT by Robert Greenwood has for its background Bermondsey, known to Londoners as the slum section of the city. During the blitz of 1940, it was this district upon which the Nazi bombers concentrated as their chief target and, each time, the A R. P. squadrons swung into action One of the members of one of these squads is the chief character and in this novel the author proves that what Cockney London may lack in the social graces; it makes up in every genuine, likeable quality of tenderness, humor and courage

MINISTRY OF FEAR by Graham Greene is a sinister story of espionage in England during the early stages of the present war. The hero is a middle-aged man, haunted by the knowledge that he has murdered his wife to keep her from suffering. He falls into the clutches of a band of fifth columnists, and there follows a series of incidents — half-way between horror and insanity, before he escapes.

Other fiction:

THE WIND AND THE RAIN Horner; YESTERDAY'S CHILDREN—Warrick; A VARIETY OF WEAPONS—King

THE WORLD OF YESTERDAY is the autobiography of Stefan Zweig, well-known author and historian who committed suicide last year in Brazil. Mr Zweig knew the golden age of modern European culture. He knew it because he was part of it In these memoirs, completed shortly before his death, he wrote of that age as one who lived its greatest hours, who contributed to its full flowering, who knew intimately its greatest figures.

Jose Jobim in his book, BRAZIL IN THE MAKING, shows how Brazil has passed through several stages since it was a slave-holding vassal of Portugal Now its coffee-and-cotton-raising epoch is giving way to another regime, for war is rapidly transforming the country into a powerful industrial nation The author is one of Brazil's leading economists.

TREES AND TEST TUBES by Charles Morrow Wilson is the whole story of rubber, from its first discovery up to modern times, including a complete analysis of present rubber shortages and possible solutions—how and why we lost our Western Hemisphere rubber supply, the search for synthetic rubbers, the extent of the present crisis, and what future chances are. Included is the full text of the Baruch committee

Other non-fiction:

FOOD FOR PEOPLE—Reid; THE NEW AMERICAN—Kalnay and Collins; IN DEFENSE OF MOTHERS—Kanner; FOUNDED UPON THE SEAS a narrative of some English maritime and overseas enterprises during the period 1550-1616—Oakeshott; THE PROPHETS AND THEIR TIMES—Smith, FROM JESUS TO PAUL—Klausner; PSYCHOLOGY APPLIED TO LIFE AND WORK—Hopner; THE COMPLETE LIFE: a guide to the active enjoyment of the arts and of living—Erskine; ART OF WORLDLY WISDOM—Gracian MEETING THE MAMMALS—Cahalane, MAN'S POOR RELATIONS—Hooton.
